Truman Ties Gag on Wallace, Silence Till Paris Parley Ends

Secretary Retains Cabinet Position

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(UP)—President Truman Wednesday imposed a gag on public utterances by Secretary of Commerce Wallace on the ticklish subject of foreign policy, and less than two hours later approved an attack on him by two fellow Cabinet members.

The attack, by Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, left Wallace with no means of making a public reply.

Wallace had announced earlier after a White House conference lasting nearly 2½ hours that he would refrain not only from making public statements or speeches on foreign policy, but on any subject, including political, until after the end of the Paris Peace Conference.

The decision was a victory for Secretary of State Byrnes, whose "get-tough-with-Russia" policy had been denounced publicly by Wallace, but a blow to Democratic politicians who had counted heavily on the 57-year-old Cabinet member's support in the approaching Congressional elections.

The Patterson-Forrestal attack, based on assertions Wallace made in a foreign policy letter to the President July 23, was made public by the White House, which customarily denotes Presidential approval of the position taken, and thus brought three Cabinet members into line against the Commerce Secretary.

In his letter, Wallace wrote that there was a school of military thinking which "advocates a 'preventive war,' an attack on Russia now before Russia has atomic bombs."

Patterson and Forrestal replied, in a joint statement handed to reporters while they were still talking about the gag on Wallace, that there was "no basis" for Wallace's statement and that "no responsible officer in the Army or Navy has ever advocated or even suggested a policy or plan of attacking Russia."

Wallace announced to reporters that he himself "reached the conclusion" to withdraw from public forums until Byrnes and his advisers had concluded their important mission to Paris, but it was

George Raps at Wallace

By PEGGY COLEMAN,
Constitution State News Service.

TIFTON, Sept. 18—Without calling names, Georgia's Sen. George, former Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and an authority on foreign affairs, today obviously blasted Secretary of Commerce Wallace for playing "cheap politics," and declared that America must pursue a course of "no appeasement" in her foreign and domestic relations.

"No man in public office with public power has any right to think of advancing his personal favor or of saving his party," the veteran Senator said in an address to the Tifton Rotary Club and 150 civic leaders. "He has the responsibility of saving his nation."

When asked directly about the current Wallace-Byrnes controversy in Washington, George replied: "It is pure politics. It is pure demagogy of the cheapest possible kind."

Sen. George appealed to the people to have the courage to let their representatives know they want no appeasement.

Again, without mentioning the name of Wallace who had stirred a storm of debate over the nation and world by advocating a softer United States attitude toward Russia, Sen. George said:

"We have a disturbing indication of division of counsel in our Government on vital issues that affect the nation. We cannot stabilize the world if those in high positions of responsibility in Government are not willing to support the Government's policies.

"There are men today in public office and in high official posi-

AFTER THIS . . . SILENCE?—Secretary of Commerce Wallace, center, reads his statement to reporters Wednesday night after a fateful conference with President Truman at the White House. Charles G. Express Workers End Strike

Brewery Labor Also Back; Only 125 Bakers Out Now

Railway Express employes in Atlanta went back to work last night and during yesterday afternoon the 125 employes of the Atlantic Company's brewery, out on strike two weeks, went back to their jobs.

This left what union leaders call the "unauthorized" strike by 125 employes of the Lee Baking Company as the only labor tie-up in Atlanta.

Express employes called off their 10-day "work stoppage" yesterday afternoon after voting to return to work immediately. The night crews went directly to their jobs to move express, which has piled up in the Atlanta terminals during the work stoppage, causing business houses to feel effects of cut-off supplies.

Officials of the Railway Express Company last night said the current express embargo affecting Atlanta, Decatur and East Point would be lifted now in a day or two.

"We must clear out the business here," the spokesman said, "before we can undertake to handle delayed shipments from elsewhere."

The "work stoppage" of the 1,300 employes of the Railway Express Agency ended after a long meeting at Red Men's Wigwam. Following that meeting, Albert H. Few, General Chairman for the Gulf Division of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks (AFL), the union to which the express employes belong, issued this statement:

"Through the efforts of Thomas E. Bickers, of the National Mediation Board, at Washington, employes of the Railway Express Agency here voted to return to their jobs after a series of continuous meetings which began Sept. 9, due to a dispute over interpretation of seniority rules affecting the employes' rights.

"The employes regret the inconvenience to which the public has been occasioned by this misunderstanding between the Agency and its employes." Few said that the "work stoppage," being in violation of a contract, was "illegal and unauthorized" and that agents of the Union from the beginning had urged the employes to go back to work. He explained that the Agency had agreed to an interpretation of seniority rules satisfactory to the employes and that all other matters in dispute would be referred to the National Mediation Board.

"These employes are returning to work at once," he said. "Those on the night shift will report to their stations at once and begin to move the accumulated express freight. All employes will be on the job by Thursday."

The labor tie-up at the Atlantic Company's brewery came to an end also yesterday and the employes began to report back to work. The Company's agreement to permit non-union employes to vote on whether or not they may join a union brought the strike to a close. It started two weeks ago.

LELAND HARVEY
Before the Surprise Witness "Cleared" Him.

Prison Mate Takes Harvey Robbery Rap

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

A glib, gesticulating ex-truck driver who said robbery was his sideline and explained he first met Leland Harvey at Tattnall Prison "in solitary—maximum security, that is"—was ushered to court as a surprise defense witness late yesterday, taking full blame for the armed robbery for which Harvey is on trial in Superior Court.

Carroll Franklin Evans, 32, now facing 53 years' imprisonment on robbery counts, picked E. C. Guthrie out of a courtroom full of people and identified him as the man he and an accomplice had robbed of "something under $30" at a Schulte Cigar Store on Marietta St. in August, 1934.

"I don't want to see an innocent man punished for something he didn't do," Evans told the jury.

With the dramatic presentation of Evans' testimony the defense rested its case on the last open indictment standing between Harvey and an application for a parole in 1950. The trial will resume today with the introduction of Sol. Gen. E. E. (Shorty) Andrews' rebuttal witnesses.

In testimony which frequently brought snickers from the packed courtroom and twice provoked Judge Walter C. Hendrix to call for order, Evans gave a detailed account of how he and a man he identified as Murray Dyson, Augusta produce man, held up Guthrie. By means of a penciled diagram he showed Sol. Andrews and the jury the layout of the cigar store and gave a minute description of his and his accomplice's actions. Attempts of the State attorney to break down his story and get him to admit that Harvey had committed the crime brought a crack from Evans: "If Harvey did that he must of run me a close second—come in there right behind me."

Evans said he and Dyson were operating a produce business between the Farmers' Market here and Augusta at the time of the robbery and admitted it was one of several they had staged during that month. He told how they parked their car on Broad Street and in answer to Andrews' question, "Whose car was that?" the witness said lightly, "I'll be dogged if I know."

"Where did you get it?" Andrews asked. "Do you know?"

"Sure, I know," Evans said. "I stole it down on Capitol Avenue."

Evans said he brandished the gun in the cigar store, ordering Guthrie to "get down on the floor so you won't get hurt." "This is a hiest," he quoted himself as saying as he approached the cash register, "I want what's in there." Afterwards, he said, he was "so burnt up and disgusted at the amount of money I got I gave it all to Murray."

On cross examination Evans described the clothing he was wearing, differing in several details the descriptions given by Guthrie.

"What kind of hat were you wearing?" the state attorney asked him.

"I never wear a hat," Evans shrugged airily.

"What kind of shoes?" persisted Andrews.

"Oh, Thom McAn or Florsheim,"

Missing Navy Plane Found; Report 8 Dead

SEATTLE, Sept. 18—(AP)—A Navy PBY Flying Boat, missing since Monday with eight men aboard, was found wrecked in the foothills, 45 miles Northeast of here late Wednesday.

The crew of a Navy jeep, searching for the plane, reported by radio that all aboard were dead.

Thomas Trunty, a Granite Falls High School boy who was one of the party which found the plane, said he saw but one body, near the plane, and an open parachute nearby.

He said wreckage was strewn 200 to 300 feet down a hillside hanging in the trees, after the plane hit and slid down the Cascade Foothills, a mile North of Canyon Creek Lodge and 12 miles Northeast of Granite Falls.

44 Feared Lost on Atlantic Plane

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(UP)—A four-engined trans-Atlantic airliner, carrying 44 persons including at least six Americans, was missing Wednesday night and apparently had crashed or made a forced landing either at sea or in the bleak woodlands surrounding the airport at Gander, Newfoundland.

The giant plane, operated by the Belgian Airline, Sabena, came in for an instrument landing early Wednesday morning at the fog-shrouded, wind-swept Gander Airport, stopping point on its flight from Brussels to New York. Suddenly radio contact with the big DC-4 was broken and no further word was received.

It was 2:15 p. m. before the weather cleared sufficiently for a commercial plane of the American Overseas Airlines and a Navy PBY to take off for a search over the rugged Newfoundland terrain. Four ground parties started out earlier on the theory the plane must be near the airport.

The Coast Guard at nearby Argentia, Newfoundland, reported Wednesday night one of its PBY's spotted three plane wrecks in the vicinity of Gander and said two definitely were old wrecks but one "apparently was new." The 200-foot ceiling and poor light made positive identification of the third wreck "questionable," the Coast Guard said.

The wreckage was scattered over 300 yards and there was no sign of life. Although there was a lake nearby, the PBY could not land because of the poor visibility. The plane will return to the scene early Thursday and land a search party to determine whether the wreckage is that of the missing Belgian plane.

Gander was a stopping point on the ATC shuttle service from America to Europe during the war and there were a number of crashes in the vicinity.

Sabena officials in New York were hopeful the plane either had made a successful forced landing or had come down at one of the smaller Newfoundland fields and that the extremely poor communications had prevented the pilot from notifying Gander Field.

A passenger list issued by the airline in Brussels showed there were 37 passengers and seven crew members aboard. It listed six Americans.

A communique from the Gander Airport to LaGuardia Field Wednesday night said the aerial search would be resumed at the first light Thursday, weather permitting.

If all were killed when the plane went down, it would be the worst commercial airline disaster in history.

Two planes and four ground-search parties hunted ceaselessly for the plane all day without success, James O. Leet, Pan-American Airways Station Manager at Gander, said.

The passengers aboard the airliner included 11 women, two young girls and a boy, it was learned.

Leet said the Belgian plane was in radio contact with the Gander control tower at 5:07 a. m. Newfoundland time. He believed the ship started an instrument landing approach then. It was not heard from again.

A heavy wind of about 40 knots was sweeping the field at the time and the ceiling was low, Leet said. He added it would have been difficult for the plane to make a forced landing in the area "because of the rugged terrain."

One search party on foot was on its way to the wreckage near Gander, seen Wednesday by the crew of an American airliner which left the field there at 11 a. m.

Wright Gillies, purser of the American Airlines plane, identified the wreckage as a DC-4, the same type as the Sabena liner.

However, Sabena officials said they had been advised from Gander through the Pan American Airways office here that the wreckage definitely was that of a military plane.

"We still feel that the plane has landed safely," a Sabena spokesman said.

Some support was given for his hope in the fact that the weather was uniformly bad in Newfoundland through the night and all day Wednesday. Telephone and wireless communications between New York and there were out most of Wednesday and the plane conceivably could have made an emergency landing at a small base where there were no available communications facilities.

The Belgian plane was due at Gander at 3:30 a. m. Wednesday. Nothing was heard from it since the pilot radioed at 3:37 that he was making a turn preparatory to coming in for a landing.

A passenger list cabled from Brussels disclosed there were six Americans aboard, four from New York and two from New Jersey. They were:

Nathan Lindenbaum, New York.
Rudy Ruvil, New York.
Joseph Alster, New York.
Helen Henderson, New York.
William and Mary M. Wilson, Short Hills, N. J.

Miss Henderson, Executive Secretary of the International Division of Girl Scouts, was returning from a Girl Scout meeting in France. Her mother waited at the airport here to meet her.

Alster was a diamond dealer in Europe on a business trip.

All the other passengers aboard, with the exception of one Chinese citizen, were Belgians, Sabena officials in Brussels said. The Chinese was G. King, 19-year-old son of Chinese Ambassador to Belgium.

Chemical Warfare Service Reveals Potent Poison To Wipe Out Nations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(INS) Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt revealed Wednesday night that the chemical warfare service which he heads has developed a poison of such strength that an ounce of it if properly administered could wipe out about 180 million people.

Waitt asserted that in his opinion this weapon rivals the atomic bomb as a means of one country imposing its will on another.

The General observed also that the weapon lends itself to secrecy, asserting that a small nation could develop it cheaply without the world's knowledge unless there was in operation a powerful intelligence service.

The War Department has strongly recommended as a major part of America's national security program a world-wide intelligence service of great strength.

The new "super poison" was said in Schenectady, N. Y., by Dr. Gerald Wendt, of New York City, editorial director of Science Illustrated Magazine, to be so powerful that an invisible quantity of it is enough to kill a man.

Wendt spoke before a General Electric science forum in Schenectady, saying that an ounce of the poison would be sufficient to wipe out the entire populations of the United States and Canada, 180 million people.

In Washington, the Director of the Chemical Warfare Service asserted during an interview:

"The service does know of agents of that magnitude. We have a toxin which approximates that."

The General stressed, however, that he was not saying that using them to kill was as yet practical.

The General indicated that he meant by this statement that methods of distributing the poison were not worked out—that scientists are confronted with "putting the salt on the bird's tail."

Waitt said that there is no law to which this nation has subscribed that would prohibit chemical warfare which would involve use of the "super poison."

He declared:

"It is leaning on a weak reed to outlaw any weapon. Efforts should be directed toward outlawing war. That is the only hope."

Waitt said that the Allies led the world during the war in the field of biological warfare weapons. He expressed belief that no nation is ahead of this one in that field.

The General emphasized that there is no weapon for which a means of retaliation has not been devised. He added that he did not know how soon a defense against the new poison might be developed.

Partly Cloudy, Warmer In Sight Here Today

The rains came and, for today and tomorrow at least, have gone, according to the weatherman, who forcasts only partly cloudy skies with slightly higher temperatures.

A high and low of 78 degrees and 60 degrees are expected today with a high of 80 tomorrow.

Yesterday's high and low were 72 degrees and 56 degrees.

Slain Bandit's Identification As Bath House Slayer in Doubt

Suspicion that a young man slain in a hold-up attempt near Marion, S. C., a few days ago might be the same man who shot C. A. Wallace to death at a bathhouse here Sept. 8 faded and was then revived by police here yesterday. This resulted from conflicting identification of the dead South Carolina bandit, whose description had tallied with that of Wallace's alleged slayer.

At Marion, Sheriff J. Leon Gasque first announced yesterday that the bandit's body had been identified as Luther Valentine White, Jr., who had escaped only a month ago from a Georgia prison camp. Later, however, the Associated Press reported an Anderson, S. C., woman, Mrs. Maudie Bell Rogers, had identified the man as her estranged husband, Carl Benjamin Rogers, who had gone to Texas following their separation after his discharge from the Army.

An automobile used by the slain bandit bore a Georgia license tag bought in Atlanta on Sept. 5—three days before Wallace's death—under the name of B. W. White, with a Beaumont, Texas, address.

Sheriff Gasque told the Associated Press, however, that he was satisfied with the hold-up man's identification as made by Luther V. White, Sr., a Chattanooga night club operator, who said the dead man was his son, Luther V. White, Jr. Anderson County, South Carolina, police, however, said Mrs. Rogers' identification of the dead man as her husband was corroborated by S. H. Cleveland, a taxi driver who took her to Marion to view the body.

Doubt that Luther V. White, Jr., was Wallace's killer was expressed here when City Councilman Joe Allen, who has admitted his presence at the scene of the bathhouse hold-up slaying, viewed an old photograph of White on file here and said the picture did not resemble the man known only as "FBI" who, poker-playing eyewitnesses said, shot Wallace.

By Adoption---But Still A Happy Blessed Event

Friends of a young lawyer and his wife were surprised to receive a little card announcing the arrival of a baby.

It was none of this business of counting the months on fingers, because the couple had been married for quite a few years. But the friends had been on parties with the new mother just a few nights previously, and her costume was not the customary maternity dress.

The amazement of the announcement of the new baby's arrival ended when the friend read the postscript. It said: By adoption.

Tito Ignores Repeated Requests To Locate American Civilian

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 18—(UP)—The United States Embassy revealed Wednesday that Roy H. Stoeckel, an American civilian who was working for the Army in Austria, disappeared into Yugoslavia on June 15, and the Yugoslav Foreign Office has ignored repeated requests for information about him.

A letter from Stoeckel, dated one day after his disappearance, and the jeep in which he was traveling, have come into American hands.

The letter was written at Maribor, near the Austrian frontier, and was delivered by Yugoslav soldiers to the British Vice Consul at Ljubljana, along with the jeep. Stoeckel said in his letter that, while driving through Austria, he was stopped by armed Yugoslav soldiers on a road which passes through Yugoslavia.

Stoeckel said he had been taking pictures and the soldiers told him he was within the Yugoslav border, which was not marked.

The Yugoslav soldiers apparently took him prisoner then, because his letter said he had been sent through Yugoslav Army channels to Maribor, where he wrote the British Vice Consul for help.

The United States Embassy asked the Yugoslav Foreign Office on June 26 for information about Stoeckel. The note was not answered.

On Sept. 3, it sent a second note to the Foreign Office. That note has not been answered; Yugoslav officials will not even confirm they have Stoeckel.

The U. S. Army outfit for which he was working reported him missing last Monday. Stoeckel was attached to an ordnance unit at Wels, Austria. His home address could not be determined, but his civilian War Department serial number is B2200102.

United States Ambassador Richard C. Patterson said he expects an answer "reasonably soon" from Marshal Tito on the American request for a $400,000 indemnity for the two Army transports shot down Aug. 9 and 19 by Yugoslav fighters and for the five fliers killed in the Aug. 19 incident.

Unofficial reports said most of the amount was sought for families of the dead airmen.

New Episcopalian Budget Calls for Radio Program

By THE REV. J. M. RICHARDSON,
Rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Atlanta

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 18—The House of Deputies of the Protestant Episcopal Church heard at its meeting Wednesday the budget proposed for the next three years, which includes for the first time in the history of the church an appropriation for radio programs.

The radio appropriation in the budget, presented by Bishop-Elect Lane W. Barton, was made in response to a proposal by two Atlantans, Bishop John Moore Walker and the Rev. J. Milton Richardson, that the Episcopal Church sponsor an "Episcopal Hour" on an independent radio network.

A proposal presented by another Atlanta delegate in the House of Deputies, the Rev. Sumner Guerry, that the Episcopal Church begin missionary work in India also received favorable action.

INDIA'S PROBLEMS

In recommending the beginning of such work, the report of the joint committee on program and budget stated: "No picture of the work of the Church in Asia is complete without giving consideration to India with its manifold problems to which Christianity is the only final solution.

"We commend this infant field of our work to the prayerful consciences of the members of this convention and urge upon the National Council as rapid an increase in our participation in the work there as is possible."

A sum of $11,000 was appropriated to begin work in 1947 in India, which formerly had been left entirely to the Church of England as a missionary field.

The new budget called for an increase in salaries of clergy and layworkers in the National Church Headquarters in New York, and clergy and layworkers in both the domestic and the foreign mission field. Provision was made for larger expenditures for rural work and Christian education and for new work in China and Central America.

The total budget adopted for 1947 is $3,386,887.

Election of a suffragan bishop to supervise the work of Episcopal Church chaplains in the armed forces was approved by the House of Bishops. The suffragan bishop would be under the direction of the presiding bishop. The action of the House of Bishops is not final, but will require action at the next general convention.

A suitable installation service for the new presiding bishop was indorsed by the House of Bishops. Bishop Henry K. Sherill, of Massachusetts, will take office as presiding bishop Jan. 1. A committee was appointed to arrange for the installation which probably will be held in the Washington Cathedral.

National Council membership recommendations from the House of Deputies were received and approved by the House of Bishops. Those recommended are: Bishop R. B. Mitchell, of Arkansas; Bishop A. R. McKinstry, of Delaware; the Rev. Mr. John Heuss, of Chicago; the Rev. John S. Higgins, of Minnesota; C. M. Davis, of East Carolina; C. P. Taft, of Southern Ohio; S. S. Schmidt, of Harrisburg, Pa.; Dr. Clark G. Keubler, of Fond Du Lac, Minn. (all for six-year terms); the Rev. Mr. Robert A. Magill, of Southwestern Virginia; and the Rev. R. R. Brown, of Texas (for three-year terms).

'45 Beauty Contestant With Shooting Victim

Constitution State News Service.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 18—The blonde beauty who accompanied Fayette "Fate" Leebern to the Southern Manor, Phenix City night club, where the political figure and liquor dealer met a violent death Monday night, was identified Wednesday as Miss Edna Hoyt, a 1945 beauty queen contestant.

Miss Hoyt was entered in last year's "Miss Columbus" contest under the sponsorship of the Georgia Music Company, one of the Leebern Enterprises. She is an employe of the Cardinal Cafe, in the Cardinal Hotel, which was operated by Leebern.

Other developments in the case Wednesday were: (1) Russell County Sheriff J. Shannon Burch announced that Clyde Yarbrough, cafe owner, had turned in a knife he said he had found six inches from Leebern's body. Burch said Grady N. "Snooks" Shepherd, maintaining silence in the Russell County jail where he has been "held for investigation" since he admitted shooting Leebern Monday night, has declined to identify the knife. Monday night Shepherd exhibited a three-inch gash in his chest and said that Leebern had cut him with a knife.

(2) Donald Leebern, son of the slain man, said he planned to retain private counsel to assist the prosecution.

Phenix Police Chief P. M. Daniel Wednesday afternoon was reported out of his office in an attempt to "make contact" with Hoyt Shephard, Grady's brother, and Jimmie Mathews. Mathews and Hoyt Shepherd, according to witnesses at the Southern Manor, accompanied Grady Shepherd and Leebern into the small private dining room at the club, in which Leebern died of two bullet wounds.

Leebern's comely companion, when interviewed Wednesday, was wearing a fitted black suit with a corsage of butterfly orchids. Funeral rites were set for 4 p. m. Wednesday.

Quick Relief from Pile Irritation

DECORATOR'S ADVICE:

Complement Home, Lives

Brighten the corner where you are is the practical advice for home decorating offered by Mrs. Florence Terhune, of New York, who began the first of three lectures on interior decoration problems for Davison-Paxon Company yesterday.

Mrs. Terhune is the author of "Decorating for You," and has been a contributing writer for popular decorating magazines, her particular present-day interest being tropical decor.

In yesterday's lecture, the visiting decorator emphasized her belief that furnishings should reflect the atmosphere of the section in which the individual home is built, and should complement the architecture of the house, and the lives of the family which dwells within it.

"And use whatever is available in furniture and fabrics," she urged, "it will fit much better than strange, imported ideas."

PINK CANDY, FAT CATTLE

DeKalb's New Fair Is Bigger Than Ever

By KATHERINE BARNWELL

The cattle are sleeker, the cotton candy is pinker, the food exhibits are tastier, and the midway is merrier at this year's DeKalb County Harvest Festival than at any of the four previous fairs in the county's history.

In short, it's "bigger and better than ever," say the fair officials.

The Harvest Festival had its grand opening yesterday on the grounds of the Southwest DeKalb School at Panthersville. People of all ages, shapes and descriptions gathered for the event—the first DeKalb County fair to be held since the outbreak of the war.

Scott Candler, Commissioner of DeKalb County, beamed with pride as he surveyed the scene and gave the welcoming address, which officially opened the Festival.

"Here," he said, "you can see something of the progress of DeKalb County in the past few years. It is a good thing, I believe, to get together and view some of the products raised, manufactured and sold within our county."

Besides farm and industrial progress, Candler called attention to DeKalb's advances in education . . . it's eight accredited high schools, two junior high schools and 24 elementary schools, presided over by 258 competent teachers, and its 17 colored schools, with 41 teachers.

Candler pointed out that numerous school exhibits are on display at the fair.

"Our festival combines education and entertainment," A. M. Candler, Chairman, emphasized. He admitted that the merry-go-round, ferris wheel, and other carnival rides are offered as drawing cards. But once people are on the fair grounds, he smiled, they see the exhibits.

And the exhibits are well worth seeing.

Sixty-odd head of livestock have been washed and brushed and clipped for judging today. The agricultural exhibits judging will be at 10 a. m., and the judging and parade of beef cattle will be at 4 p. m.

Home demonstration clubs of DeKalb County are displaying their products in the Southwest DeKalb School gymnasium.

In the Agricultural Building, 4-H Club and FFA youngsters have exhibits of their various accomplishments during the year. There you will find everything from pumpkins to pieced quilts.

Pigeons, chickens, ducks and pheasants comprise the poultry exhibit. Rabbits, white and brown, also are on display.

"Everything that you see here at the fair," emphasizes R. N. Jones, of the Agriculture Committee, "was raised or made in DeKalb County. We turned down numerous entries from outside DeKalb, because we want this to remain strictly a County fair."

The DeKalb County Harvest Festival is sponsored by the DeKalb Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce. Dr. C. C. von Gremp is General Chairman and Mrs. W. Guy Hudson is Secretary.

The fair grounds will be open 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily through Saturday.

PICTURE OF WAR

Army Exhibit To Be Among Best at Fair

Through the exhibits from agriculture and industry may get top billing at the Southeastern World's Fair and National Industrial Exposition at Lakewood Park Sept. 27 through Oct. 6, the U. S. Seventh Army with headquarters in Atlanta is all set to give both a run for their money.

For the Army is to have an exhibit all its own and its latest weapons and equipment will be displayed and demonstrated for Fair-goers, giving them a fascinating, realistic picture of modern warfare. Between Gates 1 and 2, over an acre has been set aside by the Fair management for the Army's exhibit and the military, with its customary efficiency, is going all out in its program.

Units from four Seventh Army posts, Ft. McPherson and Ft. Benning, Ga.; Ft. Jackson, S. C., and Ft. Bragg, N. C., will be represented by components of the Quartermaster Corps, Ordnance Department, Chemical Warfare Service, Signal Corps, Medical Corps, Chaplains Corps and Engineers Branch. All will display their latest and most modern equipment. Improvements which have been made since the war's end will be included in these displays.

Among the weapons shown will be tanks, big guns, flame throwers, chemical mortars and shells, hand grenades, incendiary bombs, small arms, etc.

Equipment on display will include the contemplated future Army uniforms. These will be of six types, arctic, tropical, present Summer and Winter and the two new blues and khakies.

Charges 24 Vets Draw Funds on False Claims

Baring results of a drive against veterans who defraud the Federal Government, the Georgia Labor Department yesterday revealed that 24 former servicemen have been found receiving unemployment readjustment allowances while gainfully employed.

Because of the fraudulent claims, the 24 veterans have permanently lost all benefit privileges under the GI Bill of Rights and are liable to Federal prosecution, Commissioner Ben T. Huiet said.

Twenty-three additional cases charging fraud have been discovered by field investigators engaged in hunting down veterans who attempt to receive the payments dishonestly, he added.

A majority of those filing fraudulent claims fail to report earnings and draw benefits to which they are not entitled, officials said.

Huiet also issued a warning to students who receive educational allowances, advising them they are not eligible for the readjustment pay. "Receiving benefits simultaneously under two or more different provisions of the GI Bill is strictly in violation of the act," he pointed out, "and such offenders will lose their benefit rights and are liable for prosecution."

The Labor Commissioner explained that those who file fraudulent claims are in the minority and that some of these become guilty of filing the illegal applications through ignorance.

He urged that all veterans become familiar with the law in order to protect their own rights and help combat those who attempt to receive more than is due them.

Hewitt Replaced By Conolly in High Navy Post

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(AP)—The Navy announced that V. Adm. Richard Conolly will replace Adm. Henry K. Hewitt as commander of U. S. Naval Forces in Europe about Sept. 23.

Conolly, ranking U. S. member of the Paris Peace Conference Military Commission, will take the rank of full Admiral along with his new duties.

Hewitt will return to Washington for temporary duty in the office of Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Nimitz pending another assignment, the Navy said.

Conolly commanded destroyers during the early days of the war, and shifted to amphibious operations during the invasion of Sicily and Italy. As commander of Group 3 Amphibious Forces of the Pacific Fleet he landed troops from Kwajalein to Lingayen Gulf in the Philippines.

CONSTIPATION BOTHERED HIM FOR 25 YEARS

Famous Cereal Keeps Him Regular Without Harsh Laxatives

Have you sought in vain for constipation relief? Then read this unsolicited letter:

"I suffered from constipation for 25 years. I tried almost everything—from pills to enemas. Then, in 1931, I threw away harsh laxatives and started eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Since then I have been eating it every day and have had gentle bowel movements." Mr. A. T. Holm, 812½ No. Mariposa Ave., Los Angeles 4, Cal.

If you suffer from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet, you may be freed from this trouble for life—if you eat an ounce of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day, and drink plenty of water. If not completely satisfied, after ten days' trial, send empty package to Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Michigan. You will receive double your money back. ALL-BRAN is not a purgative—but a nutritious cereal that provides gentle bulk helpful to normal laxation. Eat ALL-BRAN every day as a delicious cereal—or in muffins.

Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg's of Battle Creek and Omaha.

"READ TO YOUR CHILDREN"—Is the advice Miss Annie Houze Cook offers to parents of pre-school children. She demonstrates the art with a group of her pupils at Sandy Springs School where she has taught for 21 years. Left to right are Brenda Fay Kirk, Johnny Scoggins, Mary Jane Floyd, Jack Thacker and Elizabeth Barber.

ONE TEACHER SAYS:

Sunday School Best Tutor Of Reading for Youngsters

When parents ask Miss Annie Houze Cook, teacher of the first grade at Sandy Springs School for 21 years, how they can help their child to learn to read, Miss Cook invariably replies, "Take him to Sunday School."

And note, she says, "take," not "send." "The parents need to go, too," says Miss Cook.

Miss Cook firmly believes that Sunday School offers a child the best social adjustment that he can have for the first grade.

"The children who've gone to Sunday School," she says, "learn to read much faster than the others. They're my best pupils."

In her 21 years of guiding six-year-olds through their first learning experience, Miss Cook has observed a definite upswing in intelligence.

"The children today are smarter than they were 20 years ago," she says. "They've listened to the radio; they've been to the movies. Their mothers have more time to read to them.

"And reading to a child always helps him to learn to read. I can spot the ones who have been read to. Give 'em a book and they start reading it."

Miss Cook always gets acquainted with the parents of her children. Ever since she's been teaching, she has visited them in their homes. Lately, she's been having a party once a year at her 108-year-old home near Roswell for all the mothers and fathers.

Another innovation which Miss Cook has made—all on her own hook—is a Summer class for her future first graders. "It helps with the social adjustment," she says, "and puts them a month ahead."

Miss Cook says it added 10 years to her life when they put her to teaching the first grade. "I get a thrill out of it every year," she says.

The library at Sandy Springs School is named for Miss Cook, who was the moving spirit in its organization.

Housing Group Meets Tomorrow

Elbert P. Tuttle, chairman of the Mayor's Emergency Housing Committee, has announced that a second open meeting of the group will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the directors' room of the Chamber of Commerce Building, at which time subcommittees will report on their efforts toward breaking Atlanta's housing bottleneck.

Tuttle said any Atlantans who have suggestions of value will be welcome at the meeting and should notify J. W. Stephens at the Community Housing Center, WA. 9416, in advance.

"We are having plenty of criticism but receiving little concrete suggestions," the chairman added, as he declared "the job as we see it is to help channel all available critical building materials to produce as quickly as possible the largest number of living units at a price veterans are able to pay."

WAY NAZIS LOST—VERSION III

Goering To Blame, Says Adm. Raeder

(This is the last in a series of three articles in which the three former chiefs of the German armed forces who are now waiting for their sentences in Nuernberg jail give their opinions on why Germany lost the war.

By ERICH RAEDER
Former Grand Admiral of the German Navy.
Copyright 1946 by International News Service.

NUERNBERG, Sept. 18—(INS)—Germany's lost opportunity No. 1, in this war was, without any doubt, the invasion of the British Isles, in Summer or Fall, 1940.

Most Germans and foreigners have asked themselves why Hitler who had dared so many reckless coups and had always succeeded, recoiled from that ultimate step, the dream of all conquerors for 800 years.

In the Anglo-Saxon world, the belief seems to be widespread that we did not invade England because of an alleged invention capable of setting the sea aflame all along the coast and destroying our fleet and debarkation crews.

This is not true. Hitler and the German Admiralty were fully informed about that "invention" and I must say that we never took it seriously. The reports of our technicians were unanimous in regarding that invention as ineffective. If we had decided to invade England, the fear of being burned in the Channel wouldn't have held us back.

To cite only one deficiency: Such a defense weapon would have been practically worthless without control over the direction of the wind.

In other words, the fire on the sea over a distance of several hundred miles would have risked, in case of head wind, ravaging not the enemy fleet but the coast and the country it wanted to protect.

And as there exists, at present, no technical invention that can change the direction of the wind, it would have been sufficient for us to choose a day or a night where the wind blew from east to west to render the whole device of a "sea in flames" automatically ineffective.

THE REAL REASON

The real reason why we did not invade England and which has never been revealed so far, was a controversy between Goering and myself.

I had made a report to Hitler in which I had declared that I could not guarantee the success of a landing operation against England unless I had full air cover and that for this purpose at least part of our Luftwaffe would have to be put under the command of the Navy.

This, Goering categorically refused to do. He did not want to abandon his authority over a single unit of his air arm.

Hitler backed Goering up, and when they realized at last that I had been right, it was already too late.

The invasion had to be attempted by the middle of September or, at the latest, by the end of that month. But, at the beginning of September, not the slightest air preparation for such an operation had yet been taken. That was exclusively the fault of the Fieldmarshal. It was Goering, in the last resort, who prevented the invasion of the British Isles.

NORMANDY DISASTER

Our second greatest chance to win the war was, in my opinion, the invasion of Normandy by the Allies.

We were 90 percent certain that we could throw the Allied troops back into the sea and if we failed it was mainly due to lack of accurate intelligence.

We were, of course, informed about the Anglo-American preparations and we also had knowledge of their project to bring their own artificial ports with them.

But we lacked all the details about those ports and we would never have believed that they would reach such a degree of perfection. Without any doubt, it was those ports which determined the rapid and total success of the landings.

I consider the Norway expedition in April, 1940, which was prepared and executed in record time, as the outstanding feat of the German Navy during this war.

But I must admit that the invasion of France by the Allies in June, 1944, was an even more brilliant and admirable enterprise.

I hope it will serve as a warning to all German governments of the future never again to underestimate the technical prowess, thoroughness and efficiency of other nations.

Vet Students To Get Surplus Textbooks

Surplus textbooks used during World War II in training and educational programs of the armed forces will soon be available to veterans in schools and colleges, the Veterans' Administration has announced here.

Volumes will be made available directly to schools where veterans are enrolled, according to Joseph C. Holbrook, Director of Rehabilitation and Education for the Southeastern Branch VA.

Schools may be paid a handling charge of 25 cents a volume for making distribution to veteran students, and books will become the property of veterans to whom they are distributed.

London's Squatter Invasion Smashed by Court Decisions

LONDON, Sept. 18—(AP)—The back of London's 10-day-old squatter invasion was broken Wednesday as a result of court rulings, but the Communist-led squatters also appeared to have won a point by forcing the Labor Government to speed action to ease the housing crisis before Winter.

Obeying eviction orders by the courts, the first of about 1,500 men, women and children began leaving the swank West End apartments they commandeered last week in moves of which the Communist Party sought to make political capital.

But the Government, after a special Cabinet meeting Tuesday night, promised to find accommodations for anyone who had nowhere to go. There was no elaboration, but the Laborite Daily Herald later forecast drastic steps to prevent a recurrence of the situation, which the Government earlier had termed "anarchy."

A Herald political correspondent wrote that he "understood" consideration was being given to the possibility of compulsory, temporary acquisition of property suitable for housing accommodations pending an easing of the general housing shortage, caused for the most part by German bombs.

"It is recognized that urgent measures will have to be taken," he added.

Dozens of squatters left the Ivanhoe Hotel in Bloomsbury during the night and a spokesman for 300 more in Duchess of Bedford House in Kensington said they would all march out together on Friday. There was no word from another stronghold of the squatters, Abbey House, near Regents' Park, but informants said a break was expected there soon.

Police have been instructed to prohibit "any further unauthorized entry or re-entry" of the buildings, the Cabinet said, and warned that violation of eviction orders would result in prosecution. Five Communist leaders of the squatter movement have been ordered held for trial on conspiracy charges.

Western Union is asking permission to increase its rates in order to take care of recent wage increases ordered for its employes by the Government.

Airlines Pleas For Skypaths to Latin Lands End

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(AP)—Pleas by cities supporting Eastern Air Lines and Colonial Airlines, Inc., and arguments by counsel ended Wednesday the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on extension of air service to Latin America.

The Board's public council, Harry A. Bowen, recommended that the proposed extension of service to the Canal Zone be granted to Eastern. His recommendation, received shortly before the Board took the reopened case under advisement, was against allowing Eastern any intermediate stop.

The Board's decision is subject to approval by the President.

St. Louis and Richmond supported the application of Eastern; Charleston, S. C., supported Colonial, and Wilmington, N. C., without favoring any one carrier, asked for trunk line service from New York to Latin Amreica, with Wilmington as an intermediate stop.

Albert F. Beitel, representing Miami, urged the Pan-American Airways be authorized to operate to Curacao, Dutch West Indies, to combat Dutch Carriers' competition. He said Pan-American was supported by Miami since it is the only carrier proposing this service. Miami, he said, was the logical port for extension of service to the Canal Zone.

Tito Jails Archbishop As Croat Conspirator

BELGRADE, Sept. 18—(AP)—Marshal Tito's government announced Wednesday the arrest of Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Yugoslavia, and began preparation of an indictment to bring him to trial next week on charges of "crimes against the people."

A trial of 18 persons—12 of them Catholic priests—on charges of collaboration with the Ustachi, wartime terrorist organization of the Croatian regime, was halted by the public prosecutor when a prosecution witness linked the Archbishop with an aide of Dr. Ante Pavelic, puppet Croatian Premij still sought by the government.

Main defendant in the trial is Col. Eric Lisak, Chief of Security Police under Chetnik Gen. Draja Mihailovic, recently executed for war crimes. Lisak fled to Austria with Pavelic after the war, and Yugoslavs charge Pavelic still is held in the British Occupation Zone of Austria. The Yugoslav War Crimes Commission charges him with crimes against Yugoslavs and Jews during the war.

Ivan Schalic, Secretary to the Archbishop, testified that Lisak, who returned to Yugoslavia illegally after the war to organize Ustachi bands in his anti-government crusader movement, spent a night in the prelate's house, and that the crusader flag had been blessed in the Archbishop's chapel.

The Secretary testified that "the Archbishop's castle in Zagreb was the center of Ustachi, crusader and terrorist action."

The Archbishop was attacked several months ago by the Zagreb newspaper Vjesnik, which accused him of aiding the Ustachi and opposing the present government of Premier-Marshal Tito.

This attack was described in Rome by a spokesman for the Vatican newspaper l'Osservatore Romano as "Tito propaganda." The spokesman said the Archbishop and other Catholic priests in Yugoslavia had "whenever possible opposed the Ustachi."

Fabulous Lost Vein of Gold Is Found by Ex-GI in Oregon

By UNITED PRESS

An ex-GI prospector reported Wednesday the discovery of a "lost ledge" of gold ore in Oregon assaying nearly 30 times greater than the reported discovery of gold-bearing volcanic rock at Crescent City, Cal.

Veteran Wellman Smith, 35, who sought the fabulous lost vein for years only to be called away by war, reported he had returned to Oregon, located his claim and staked it. The assay, he said, ran $1,481.20 a ton and thus far the vein was traceable 25 feet deep and 200 feet long.

It was believed to be the same vein discovered by an aging prospector after 20 years of search. The prospector died a short time later without revealing its location.

Smith reported he already has moved three tons of ore for shipment, and he exhibited an assay report from the Colorado Assaying Company listing the tonnage value he named and valuing the total rock taken from the vein at $835.50.

His discovery is near New Pine Creek, a mountain village of 150 persons tucked away in the corner of Oregon near the California-Nevada state line.

It is some 280 miles east of Crescent City, where Assayer Ernest Hey reported the hills above Myrtle Creek bore gold worth $55 to $75 a ton.

E. E. Phillips, manager of the Colorado Assaying Company, in Denver, Colo., confirmed that his smelter assayed Smith's ore Sept. 10 and that it showed a heavy gold content.

Smith's ore apparently was unlike that taken from the Myrtle Creek find. Although no reports had been made as to the type of rock it was, it was believed to be a quartz vein. At Myrtle Creek the gold is found in a red metamorphic iron-bearing rock which is believed to be the remnants of an ancient volcano.

Glen H. Charles, Editor of the Lake County (Ore.) Examiner, reported Smith's find and said Smith was "getting his property in shape to work it in earnest next Spring" after the 15-foot drifts of snow expected this Winter melt.

Mrs. Peabody Dies; Rites Today

Mrs. W. J. Peabody, of 109 Seventh St., N. E., died yesterday in a private hospital.

Graveside funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m. today in West View Cemetery, with Dr. William V. Gardner officiating.

Mrs. Peabody, a native of Columbus, lived in Atlanta 47 years and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

She is survived by her husband; five daughters, Mrs. T. S. Denton, of Orlando, Fla.; Miss Josephine Peabody, of Greenville, S. C., and Mrs. J. T. Montague, Mrs. Mary T. Michael and Mrs. Elmer G. Brown, all of Atlanta; two sons, Dr. T. F. Peabody and J. E. Peabody, both of Atlanta; a sister, Mrs. Carrie Petri, of Columbus, and three grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Sgt. Earl R. Gilbert Dies in Oklahoma

Sgt. Earl R. Gilbert, 26, died Monday in an Army hospital in Enid, Okla.

He was the son of Mrs. Flora Gilbert, of 139 Whitefoord Ave., N. E.

Funeral services for Sgt. Gilbert, who had been in the Army for four years, will be held in Oklahoma.

Beside his mother, he is survived by his wife; a son, Earl R. Gilbert, III, and his grandmother, Mrs. Aubrey Moore.

Sen. Andrews Of Florida, Dies at Capital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(AP)—Sen. Charles O. Andrews, Democrat, Florida, died Wednesday of a heart attack at the Naval Hospital here. He was 69.

Andrews, whose term had only a few months to run until his voluntary retirement from public life because of failing health, went to the Hospital last week for a physical check-up. His home was in Orlando.

The Senior Florida Senator was elected to the post 10 years ago, defeating former Gov. Doyle Carleton in one of the State's major political upsets of that era. He was re-elected in 1940.

Gov. Millard Caldwell of Florida will name former Gov. Spessard Holland to fill Andrews post, political observers predicted. Holland was nominated to succeed him in the Florida Democratic Primary last Spring.

Gov. Caldwell, now in New York City on a visit, said he will have no announcement to make regarding Andrews' successor until after the funeral is held.

J. T. McConnell, 71, Road Employe, Dies

J. T. McConnell, 71, of College Park, a foreman in the shops of the State Highway Department, died yesterday at a private hospital following a short illness.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by the Carmichael Funeral Home.

Mr. McConnell, a native of Hiawassee, had been with the Highway Department for 25 years. He was a member of the First Methodist Church in College Park.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Miss Katherine McConnell and Mrs. Carl C. Boyd, and a son, Wyont McConnell.

Porter Asks Rollback on Milk, Butter

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(UP) OPA Chief Paul Porter, fresh from his price battle with the nation's restaurant owners, challenged the dairy industry Wednesday with a demand for an immediate price rollback on milk, butter, cheese and other dairy products.

He made his plea for restoration of dairy price ceilings in a letter to President Truman's three-man Decontrol Board which met to decide whether such action is necessary in the light of the existing supply and price situations.

The Board is considering written evidence which it invited from industry, consumer and Government representatives, and is expected to announce its decision before the weekend.

Porter accompanied his letter with a detailed analysis of the dairy price position based on market reports and special data compiled by OPA field offices, and he warned the Board that immediate recontrol is essential to the Government's stabilization program.

Simultaneously, Merrill Gille, chief of OPA's restaurant price branch, came forward with a somewhat conciliatory gesture to the restaurateurs, who have been up in arms since the agency ordered prices of meat dishes rolled back to June 30 levels.

Gille said OPA would consider price relief for the restaurant owners if they could prove that the new ceilings on meat dishes are too low.

Milk Control Director Of State Opposes Action

Georgia's Milk Control Director George Stewart has taken issue with Price Administrator Paul Porter who asks immediate recontrol of dairy products.

"There is no need of the Government placing milk back under Federal control," Stewart declared. "The price of milk in Georgia has not advanced out of reason. The price increase of 2 to 3 cents a quart has merely offset the Government's subsidy of 8 cents a gallon to the producers."

While Porter said that the prices of dairy products since controls were removed have exceeded the former ceiling prices plus the government subsidy, Stewart said this is not the case in Georgia.

"I testified before the Decontrol Board recently that I had received no complaints about the rise in milk prices to offset the loss of subsidies," Stewart asserted. "Since then I have received only one complaint. Georgians do not seem to feel that the price of milk is unreasonable."

Bryan, Other Forces Blamed For Blocking Settlement

Joseph Curran, President of the National Maritime Union (CIO), charged yesterday that "the arbitrary attitude of Jack Bryan, Chairman of the Pacific American Shipowners' Association, and some mysterious forces in high places" were stopping settlement of the shipping strike.

"We're looking for these forces and we'll expose them when we find them," he told a news conference after a meeting of the Committee for maritime unity at NMU headquarters.

Curran declined to indicate identity of the "forces."

The NMU president asserted the Committee for Maritime Unity had received reports from all ports that the strike was "100 percent effective," and that 1,100 ships were strikebound on both coasts and in the Gulf.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which was scheduled to be resumed today, it was announced that a subcommittee had been named to prepare instructions to be sent to all ports in connection with what a spokesman called "a rumor" on an impending arbitration award involving the NMU. He declined to discuss the nature of the arbitration or the "rumor" but said arrangements had been made fo rthe Committee for Maritime Unity to meet with CIO President Philip Murray in Washington tomorrow morning.

The shipping strike thus headed into its third week today with no sign of an early end to the union-imposed blockade of the nation's seaports.

Railway Treasurer Dies at Augusta

AUGUSTA, Sept. 18—(AP)—James A. Fagan, 52, Treasurer of the Georgia Railroad since 1944, died here Tuesday after an illness of five months.

Funeral services were scheduled Wednesday at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church with burial in Westover Memorial Park.

Fagan had been with the Georgia Railroad for 33 years.

If you lose anything today, don't lose time placing a "LOST" Ad in The Constitution.

No Hold-Back of Goods, Treasury Survey Shows

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(UP)—Treasury Secretary Snyder Wednesday spiked persistent reports that manufacturers have been holding back huge quantities of peacetime goods in the hope of obtaining higher prices.

He told a press conference that a recent Treasury survey of manufacturers' inventories showed no evidence that finished goods are being held off the market to any alarming extent.

Sec. Wallace Should Resign, Congressman Wood Says

Asserting that Secretary of Commerce Wallace has "no right to hold a high position that he betrays," Congressman John S. Wood said in an address last night that Wallace, "in all fairness to the people," should offer his resignation from the President's Cabinet.

Speaking before the monthly dinner meeting of the Decatur Exchange Club, the Georgia Representative based his charge on Wallace's denouncement of foreign policy now being followed by Secretary of State Byrnes at the Paris Peace Conference.

Wood also bitterly denounced what he tremed "Domination of labor unions by Communistic influence" and the invasion and infiltration of Communist workers in "every branch of the government."

He stated that key positions in Congress as well as other governmental activities were literally "honey-combed with Communism," and cited evidence gathered by the un-American Activities Committee, of which he is Chairman, to substantiate his charge.

Dwelling at length on Communist activity in American labor unions, Congressman Wood said "the way some of them are operated poses one of the greatest threats to American intiative and freedom."

Present laws give Communists the right to dominate the unions, and unless the American people act in a bold and courageous manner, the country will face "economic ruin and untold suffering," he added.

Wood quoted from a column written by Ralph McGill, Editor of the Constitution, in which McGill asserted that Communists were loyal to Russia and follow the Communist line in all matters, and in which he foresaw the National Maritime strike which has paralized the nation's ports for many days.

said the witness.

"I mean color not brand," said Andrews patiently.

"Oh, tan always!" said Evans.

Guthrie had previously testified that the man who held him up was wearing a gray suit and black shoes with a hat pulled down on his forehead. He said one of the men got his attention by ordering a pack of cigarettes while the other came in at another door with a gun in his hand. Evans insisted that his alleged accomplice, Dyson, asked for change instead. He told the court he had not seen Dyson for six years but described his operations as "a combination" of the produce business with "a little robbery on the side."

Using a crutch to save the leg which he says is afflicted with arthritis, Harvey took the witness stand earlier in the day and told his story gravely and a quiet diffidence. He said he had been "in trouble a lot of times but this is only the second time I've talked to a jury" and asked "you fellers to believe I'm innocent." He said he first heard he had been indicted for the cigar store robbery while serving time on a Rome robbery.

"Some of the boys got to razzing me about doing time for other people and this prisoner said: 'Harvey, you're doing a rap for me for robbery in Atlanta.' " Harvey said he wrote the solicitor and learned that he was actually under indictment and had asked for a trial on the charge to clear himself and become eligible for parole in 1950. Harvey is represented by Attys. James R. Venable and Frank Grizzard.

said the study of White's photograph was admittedly not satisfactory because it was taken when White was only 17 years of age and he would now be 25. Hilderbrand is awaiting arrival of fingerprints from Marion to check with those of White on file here.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Maudie Bell Rogers said in South Carolina that she will ask for a check of Army record fingerprints of her husband with those of the bandit killed near Marion.

Further doubt that Wallace's k'ler was White was expressed by Atlanta police in view of the fact that White escaped from a Walker County prison camp only a month ago, whereas Councilman Allen and several other men who were present at Wallace's death, said they had seen "FBI" around Atlanta occasionally for the past three months.

The State Board of Corrections records show White had a record of robbery convictions and prison escapes in Georgia and South Carolina dating back to 1938, the first convictions being in Whitfield and Catoosa Counties.

Police said another angle pointing away from White as Wallace's slayer is a recurring rumor that "FBI" was a New Orleans gambler.

WALLACE

obvious that Mr. Truman had handed him a virtual "shut up or get out" ultimatum.

Wallace, only remaining member of the original Roosevelt-New Deal Cabinet, said that he would not resign, that the President had not sought his resignation, and that the subject had not come up during the conference.

A STERN TRUMAN

Although neither the White House nor Wallace would admit that Mr. Truman had imposed a gag, it was generally assumed that the President had used stern words to persuade the Commerce boss to get out of the field of foreign policy—a field customarily reserved to the Chief Executive and the Secretary of State.

Since Wallace began his public speaking drive against Byrnes' policies in New York last Thursday night, Mr. Truman has conferred with several top Administration officials about the serious Cabinet breach that resulted, including Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan and Acting Secretary of State William L. Clayton.

Reports from Paris had said that Byrnes, while remaining silent publicity, had let it be known among close personal friends in the State Department that the President must choose between him and Wallace. Should Brynes resign, the blow to the Paris Conference might be irreparable.

During his long White House talk, Wallace said he found Mr. Truman "very confident about peace with Russia," but did not say whether that had had direct bearing on his decision to cease talking publicly on any subject.

CANCELS SPEECH

Wallace's next major speech on foreign policy was scheduled next Tuesday night at Providence, R. I., before a meeting of the National Citizens Political Action Committee—the left-wing group that sponsored the New York address that led to the split with Byrnes. This speech will be cancelled.

Presumably Wallace also will call off the "barnstorming" tour arranged for him by the Democratic National Committee, and scheduled to begin early next month. Wallace said he probably would make some political speeches after the Paris Conference ends, if it ends before the Nov. 5 Congressional elections.

A large crowd gathered outside the White House gates to watch the 57-year-old Secretary as he drove away.

As he emerged from the President's office, Wallace stopped in the middle of a crowd of reporters, and read in a loud, clear voice from penciled notes:

"The President and the Secretary of Commerce had a most detailed and friendly discussion, after which the Secretary reached the conclusion that he would make no public statements or speeches until the Foreign Ministers' Conference in Paris is concluded."

Thus, the controversy stirred by Wallace's foreign policy speech in New York last Thursday night ended in victory for Byrnes and his advisers in Paris who had been reported to be "boiling mad" over an apparent attempt by Wallace to undermine his conference efforts.

"AN HONEST MAN"

After reading his brief statement to newspapermen, Wallace answered questions willingly as he threaded his way through jostling reporters to his car.

"What was it the President told you that persuaded you to refrain from making speeches?" a reporter asked.

The Secretary then repeated his earlier comment that he found Mr. Truman confident about working out peaceful relations with Russia.

Another reporter rephrased the question, asking what it was that had led Wallace to his decision.

"The fact that I am an honest man," he replied, grinning.

During the more than two hours he spent in Mr. Truman's office, Wallace said, there were no telephone calls to Paris or any place else in connection with the conference. The only other person present was White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross.

Asked if he still stood pat on his "ease-up-on-Russia" speech, which Mr. Truman at first apparently approved and later repudiated, Wallace replied, "absolutely."

The Paris peace conference, progressing so slowly that it became necessary to postpone the scheduled United Nations Assembly meeting in New York until Oct. 23, may continue so far into the approaching political campaigns that Wallace would be eliminated completely as one of the Democratic National Committee's top speakers.

When the Secretary arrived at the White House for his showdown with Mr. Truman at 3:27 p. m. EST, he was greeted by a crowd of reporters and photographers.

"This is the best show I've seen yet," he said, and hurried into the President's office.

Mr. Truman talked twice earlier Wednesday with Acting Secretary of State Clayton—once when Clayton visited the White House with Assistant Secretary of State Donald S. Russell, a warm personal friend of Byrnes, and later when Clayton escorted Bernard Baruch, author of the U. S. Atomic Energy Control Plan, and John M. Hancock, New York industrial banker and Baruch's close adviser, to the Chief Executive's office.

The visit of Clayton and Russell gave rise to reports that Russell may have brought the President some personal word from Byrnes, who thus far has said nothing publicly about Wallace's opposition to his policies.

Baruch's visit, about which he declined to talk, may have been prompted by Wallace's views on atomic energy control, which were set forth in a letter from the Commerce boss to the President July 23. Wallace released the letter for publication Tuesday, without Mr. Truman's approval and apparently as the result of a misunderstanding with White House Press Secretary Ross.

In his letter, Wallace recommended scrapping Baruch's Atomic Energy Control Plan and defended Russia for not liking it.

One question about the release of the letter appeared to have been cleaned up Wednesday—did the columnist who first obtained it "filch" it from Commerce Department files or did he get it from outside sources?

The Department, without naming any one, announced Tuesday that it was "filched." Columnist Drew Pearson promptly threatened to sue Wallace for libel unless the charge was withdrawn.

Wednesday, again without mentioning names, Wallace issued this formal statement:

"I was gratified to learn that the columnist who had a copy of my letter of July 23 stated categorically that he got it from sources outside the Department of Commerce. I am happy to take his word, and I would be interested in where he did secure the letter."

GUNSHOT BLAST FAILS TO DROWN OUT WEDDING BELLS FOR SHOOTING VICTIM

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Sept. 18—(AP)—Otis Thacker, 30, refused to let his being a patient at the Methodist Hospital here interfere with his wedding plans.

Thacker, who was wounded in both legs in a shooting affray on a downtown street during the noon hour rush Monday, and Nona Mae Adkins, 20, were married Monday night in his hospital ward by the Rev. Melta Thacker, with a nurse and a friend of the bridegroom's as witnesses. The couple, residents of nearby Millard, kept the wedding secret until Tuesday.

The shooting occurred shortly before the wedding was scheduled. Mrs. Bessie Justice, 33, of Fishtrap, charged with shooting and wounding in connection with the affray, waived to the grand jury when arraigned before County Judge J. W. Pruitt Tuesday and was released on $2,000 bond.

No motive for the shooting has been disclosed.

Bandit Flees With $87 In Liquor Store Holdup

A Negro bandit, brandishing a revolver, last night forced H. W. Crider, clerk in a liquor store at 207 Luckie St., N. W., and a Negro customer, to stand by while the bandit looted the cash register of $87, police were told.

Crider said he fired several shots at the Negro, who fled down Luckie Street.

tions generally regarded as sincere who, nevertheless, draw a robe of liberalism, so called, about themselves and become the spokesmen for foreign powers whose social, economic and political philosophies are directly opposed to everything for which America has at any time stood."

Taking up direct opposition to Wallace who cracked at England and eased up on Russia, Sen. George remarked:

"If England was our first line defense in 1941, it is so today. England has not changed except as it has been pushed a little closer to Socialism and Communism. We must never cut off from the only other leading nation in the world sincerely devoted to free enterprise and liberty as we understand it. Attacks against England have been directed from behind the 'iron curtain' from which the order has been sent out to destroy England.

"Any man—whether Vice President, Senator, or President—who makes a statement now in the nature of an attack against British imperialism is following a party line that runs directly out of Moscow," George declared.

The Senator said he has the strongest sympathy and deepest love for the Russian people, but for despotism and tyranny he has only the deepest contempt.

"If we are moving toward world law and order and stability essential for the progress of all men, we must at once abandon the policy of appeasement at home and abroad," Sen. George concluded. "At this critical period in our affairs, no man clothed with responsibility, obligation and power may think of how he may advance his political interests or even save his party. He must think only of how he can save his country. It is now the time for us to save this country."

Rotary Pres. W. Bruce Ronaldson, Jr., presided. Sen George was introduced by L. E. Bowen.

Officers Named At Water, Sewage School Banquet

The Georgia Water and Sewage School elected officers for the coming year last night at a banquet at the Ansley Hotel. The meeting climaxed a three-day schooling session sponsored jointly by the Georgia Water and Sewage Association, the Georgia School of Technology, and the Georgia Department of Public Health.

The newly elected officers are: President, Comer Turley, Mechanical Superintendent of the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, Lindale; First Vice President, B. L. Coburn, Superintendent of the Fitzgerald Light and Water Department; Second Vice President, Clyde Angle, Superintendent of Purification, Tubize-Chatillon Corporation, Rome; Secretary-Treasurer, Van P. Enloe, Superintendent of the Clayton Sewage Disposal Plant, Atlanta; Assistant Secretary and Treasurer, L. E. Waller, Operator at Clayton; First District Director, D. V. Parrott, Jr., Superintendent of Utilities, Dalton; Third District Director, B. J. Cash, City Water department, Newnan.

Elections for second district director were not held this year.

Approximately 275 engineers and operators attended the school, which was held at Georgia Tech for the 15th consecutive year.

Three awards were presented: The McMullen Award, presented for outstanding work in water and sewage disposal, was given to T. J. Davis, of the Brighton Mills, Shannon; the William A. Hansell Award, given to the outstanding sewage plant operator of the year, was presented to V. P. Enloe, Atlanta; and the Association Award for the outstanding water purification plant operator of the year was awarded to B. J. Coburn, of the water works at Fitzgerald.

Hold on... Help's Coming

With the cost of living showing an ever-upward trend, few are the indications calculated to give hope to harassed housewives.

Thus it is all the more encouraging that the harvest season at hand promises to be one of the most abundant in the history of American agriculture.

From virtually every area, crop reports are the same, telling of unprecedented yields in nearly all commodities.

The nation's farmers have produced this year as never before. Although hampered by labor shortages and inability to acquire necessary machinery, they still are gathering bumper crops of grain and other produce.

That means sooner or later food costs will begin to decline. The inflationary trend is strong but the age-old law of supply and demand is stronger. And once the market is stocked, competition will send prices to more reasonable levels.

Mother Nature has taken a considerable hand in the fight against inflation. It may be months yet before retail grocery prices reflect this year's record harvests. But budget-pinched consumers can take new courage from the Department of Agriculture's forecasts.

Hold on . . . help's coming.

We'll Still Need a Stadium

Atlantans have long since grown used to the peculiar situation which exists as a result of inadequate facilities to house the city's male high schools. But to an outsider, seeing Tech and Boys High in operation for the first time, it is always a matter for comment.

Bill Keefe, Sports Editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, has been in Atlanta recently, attending the Shaughnessy playoff and looking in on Georgia Tech practices.

"Alumni, students and well-wishers of Atlanta's two big high schools—Tech High and Boys High—mince no words criticizing city officials and school board heads for the crowded, old-fashioned building that houses the two schools," he reports in his Times-Picayune column.

"Tech High, with around 1,000 students, and Boys High, with nearly 800, attend classes in the same building and share the same gym and the same practice field. They probably would have to share the same high school stadium, excepting there is no high school stadium to share. . . . Tech occupies one end of the school, Boys High the other. The schools have their own teachers, own rooms and their own classes. One student body enters from one end of the building, one from the other. So there is no fraternizing and few close acquaintances among boys of the rival institutions. In the gym one set of athletes occupies one side of the big structure and the other school's athletes are on the other side. If one school gets the practice field first, the other school takes a far end or goes to Piedmont Park, a block or two away, to work. There are no arguments, no spying—not even any hails or jeers exchanged. It is really an amazing situation and a compliment to the spirit and character of the boys—this recognition of invisible boundaries, but it still isn't right."

Much of the situation of which Mr. Keefe writes will, of course, be remedied as soon as building again becomes practicable. Plans have been completed and bonds authorized for construction of adequate facilities to eliminate undesirable features of the doubling-up.

But one phase of the situation upon which he touches promises to continue a problem.

Until positive action is taken toward construction of a municipal stadium, Tech and Boys High will have no adequate place to play their football schedules.

And thousands of visitors who annually come to Atlanta to watch these two outstanding teams in action will still go away commenting upon our inability to provide anything more suitable than a baseball diamond for their use.

Why Not a Triple-A Rating?

Good news to every tax-payer is Mayor William B. Hartsfield's report from New York that the city of Atlanta's credit rating, according to Moody Investors' Service, is AA.

There has been some fear that recent relaxation of restrictions on the issuance of bonds might have jeopardized the city's standing. There also was apprehension that, since virtually every municipality in the country has authorized similar debentures for postwar improvements, Atlanta's $20,400,000 issue might not find a ready market.

One thing, though, still puzzles us. The Mayor's announcement of Atlanta's AA rating said there was but one better classification—AAA—reserved "for only a few cities in the nation." This comes as asurprise to those who had thought the city's fiscal condition and general outlook were as good as the best. What's the matter, Mr. Moody? Why doesn't Atlanta rate AAA?

Wallace Speech

Editor Constitution: Having read the article on Henry Wallace's speech before the leftwing NCPAC and ICCASP, I am convinced that the country lost a good farmer when Mr. Wallace decided to enter politics. His speech, a sinister collection of half-truths, is exceeded in harmful potentialities only by his statement of last Fall in which he advised unions they could have 25 percent raises and thus precipitated a series of strikes which crippled production for half a year.

Now he criticized Gov. Dewey for favoring a defensive alliance between the United States and Britain—which was, incidentally, a happy departure from traditional Republican foreign policy—and indulged in the kind of British-baiting which leftwingers revelled in before Germany's attack on Russia in 1941. The world can ill afford such a reactionary attitude, especially on the part of so-called "liberals."

Mr. Wallace would have the U. S. stand on the sideline in the Middle East trestle and pester the British with cries of "imperialism" as they try to handle a very ticklish situation. By refusing them our support, he would let the East fall under the Soviet sphere of influence, rather than, as he says, involve us in a war which those nasty British are provoking with the liberal, non-imperalistic Russians.

Actually, of course, American and British foreign policy should draw even closer together, as they are even now doing. Any differences of opinion or interests should be thrashed out over a conference table between the representatives of the two democracies and joint policy reached in the interests of all freedom-loving peoples. Most assuredly, I agree with Mr. Wallace that we must not "follow Britain" but rather the two nations must present a joint, united and intelligently planned front against Soviet totalitarian expansion.

Dairy Prices

Editor Constitution: Your editorial in Monday's paper concerning dairy price ceilings is very timely. The dairy industry in Georgia is working very hard to avoid any further price increases to the consumer.

You are doubtless familiar with the industry and know that we produce comparatively little butter and no cheese in Georgia. Practically all our production is for sale as bottled milk. We trust that it shall not be necessary to again place the dairy industry under price controls; but, if it becomes necessary, I am sure the industry will accept it as they did during the war and do the best they can under the circumstances.

Such a move, however, will reduce production of milk if production follows the pattern of the last year; and there will be a shortage of milk not only in Georgia but throughout the country.

JAMES E. JACKSON,
Executive Secretary Georgia
Dairy Association, Inc.
Atlanta.

No Meat

Editor Constitution: The OPA has removed all meat from the markets all over America.

While there was no ceiling price we could buy a little even if the price was high.

We can't blame the cattle raisers for not putting their cattle on the market. No one has a right to tell a man that has raised his cattle how much he shall get for them.

This is supposed to be a free country.

Every citizen that wants meat should write or wire his Congressmen, Senators and President, to remove meat control at once. It's better to get a little at a high price than to get none at all.

WALTER WILKINS.
Atlanta.

Reserve Officers

Editor Constitution: When one is misquoted in the press, there is usually little to be gained by writing letters of denial or correction.

However, when a misquotation offends a large and patriotic group which served this country and the Army well during trying times, I feel it a duty to set the matter straight.

Recently, a reporter for the NEA Service, Inc., represented me as deprecating the abilities of Reserve Officers who were charged with Army mess management during the war.

This is a downright misquotation and absolutely contrary to everything I have ever said or felt in regard to Reserve Officers. I have always had the highest regard and respect for Reserve Officers who served their country in war and peace. Permit me to offer one concrete example:

Following the invasion of Southern France in 1944 I was placed in command of the southern line of communications in support of the Sixth Group of Armies, consisting of the Seventh United States Army and the First French Army. This represented a large and very important mission. From my deputy chief of staff on down through every member of my general staff there was only one officer of the Regular Army. In fact, when my chief of staff was called away prior to the consolidation of the southern line of communications with the main European communications zone, I replaced him with a Reserve Officer. I considered my SQLOC staff the finest that I had from the invasion of North Africa in 1942 through the Tunisian, Silician and Italian campaigns, the liberation of France, and the collapse of Germany. At no time was I more effectively assisted in accomplishing my mission.

I am deeply disturbed over the vicious and unwarranted attempt by an irresponsible writer blindly to alienate through misquotation inseparable elements of the service.

Albert S. Hardy Pinch-Hits Today

(Editor's Note: Ralph McGill is on vacation. His column was written today by Albert S. Hardy, Editor of the Gainesville News.)

Although much has been said recently about the loss of the power of the press, with which I do not agree, I like to think of how much better the newspapers of today are than those of a few decades ago. While I speak more particularly of what is commonly referred to as "the country press," yet in news coverage and mechanical equipment, better methods of distribution, etc., the metropolitan press has made wonderful progress.

While the editorial landscape, so to speak, has become cluttered up with what has beeome known as "columnists"—good, bad and indifferent—they contribute no little to the enlightenment and entertainment of our newspaper readers. We still have the privilege of declining to read those with whom we do not agree or whose colmns lack the type of reading which we like.

Watterson What we called personal journalism passed out of the picture many years ago, although I miss those rugged old individualists of the type of Henry Watterson, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, whose pen never lost its power with its clarity and sometimes acidity that, to me, was intriguing.

It has been lo these many years since I have known of rival newspapers engaging in a heated controversy in which one editor called the other a blatherskite or a minion of hell just because he failed to agree with some program, plan or candidate which the aforesaid editor espoused. Such controversies added greatly to the spice of life while they lasted, but they neither helped the newspapers who engaged in them, nor did they add to the sum total value of the press.

Schools of journalism, encouraged and abetted by State and national press associations, have prepared many young men and women, who are now making a decided contribution to the newspapers of the nation in whose employ many are now engaged. While the old-school editor still frowns upon the university-graduated journalism student, he secretly admits that, while the rough edges can only be taken off by practical experience, yet these boys and girls "get in the groove" far quicker because of their journalism training.

Good Typography The so-called country weekly papers of the nation have added automatic mechanical equipment to their plants, they pride themselves upon the typographical appearance of their papers, they have modern and stream-lined make-up, they see that the editorial content of their papers reflect credit upon themselves, and that their news coverage is ample for their communities. They are instrumental in having their State and national press associations engage in serving national advertising in order that the national advertising agencies may be induced to place greater amounts of national business in their papers. They are likewise, at least many of them, members of the Audit Bureau of Circulations; they have established a Weekly Newspaper Bureau, the purpose of which is to engage in research, evaluation, improvement, and promotion for the weekly newspaper industry. In other words, the small-town daily and weekly newspapers of America are endeavoring to serve their communities as well as their metropolitan publishers serve their cities.

Georgia weekly newspaper people meet once a year in annual convention and "cut loose" in so far as having a little rest and relaxation are concerned. They can become quite serious upon short order, however, and will speak out in meetin' if things are not to their liking. They prize their organization and do not intend to let anything interfere with its orderly processes.

The Georgia Press Institute, held annually with the University of Georgia, at Athens, is an occasion for bringing the finest talent in the profession from all over the country. Not only do the newspaper folks listen to the speakers, but they gather at round tables and talk over their own problems. Although they have their lighter moments, they never get away from the serious objectives and return to their tasks better equipped for the job.

Frankly, I regard Georgia newspapers, both daily and weekly, as the cream of the nation. They are doing their best to serve their respective communities in a faithful and efficient manner.

How're You Feeling? Better, Thank You

Just about the most common salutation when friends or acquaintances meet is "How Are You?" or "How're You Feeling?" And the response almost invariably is "Fine, thanks. How're you?" Neither of the conversationalists really means much by these introductory remarks and the accosted knows he is not expected to make serious, considered report on the state of his health. The reply, regardless of the true state of his health, is "Fine." Any other answer would be embarrassing and shocking because it is not expected.

Well, this week is being observed in Atlanta as "Health Week." Under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce, senior and junior, with the aid of various other civic-minded organizations, effort is being made to make the general public health conscious. The idea is to make everyone realize how much they contribute to the general well-being by their own good health and how they handicap the community as a whole when they neglect ordinary precautions against sickness and disease.

It might be a good idea, with lasting results for good, if we could make that universal greeting, "How're you feeling?" actually mean something and create a habit, on the part of the greeted, of taking real thought as to their physical condition before they give the automatic answer, "Fine!"

Public Health That the average state of public health is improving is evidenced by comparison of average longevity and incidence of various diseases over a span of years. Not only, for instance, is the average Georgia baby twice as liable today to survive the sickness and perils of infancy, but its chances of living to what we call ripe old age are far better than was true in 1920. Only one-quarter of a century ago. If you go further back in history, you find the improvement even more marked.

It is not so long ago, as history measures time, when the more fortunate segments of a community—financially speaking—practically ignored the wretchedness of those whose lot embraced poverty. Housing, sanitation, congestion of living conditions among the very poor, scarcely concerned any, save a few, of the well-to-do citizens. It was pitiful, just too bad, but the general attitude was that it was the expected concomitant of poverty and the only way out was for the individual to work and struggle and save his way to better financial circumstances.

Gradually, however, the truth spread. That truth was that disease knows no bounds of geography, that sickness cannot be confined within definite financial limitations. The sickness in the shack of the pauper has an unfortunate habit of jumping the fence into the mansion of the millionaire. When one segment of a community is disease ridden, the entire population is exposed to deadly peril.

Thus began the public interest in public health. Wealth awoke to its own danger and, for self-protection as well as for sympathy, began the organized struggle to wipe out epidemic and contagious disease and, naturally, to improve the general health of the whole community, thus to strengthen public defenses against the public enemy, disease.

Better housing, better sanitation, better medical supervision for all the people, regardless of financial ability to pay, are today recognized as constant programs which directly affect the physical wellbeing of all of us.

Focused Campaigns We are all familiar with community, State and nationwide campaigns against specific diseases. We know there is a highly organized program of research and treatment for poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis. We support anti-tuberculosis clinics and we have established active and effective clinics for the treatment of syphilitics and victims of other "social diseases."

There are scores of battles being fought against specified diseases and, one by one, we are conquering these lethal foes of human life.

They are all good. They all contribute to the better physical health of our people, they all have part in the steadily lengthening life expectancy of the average American.

Behind them all, though, stands the general thought of improved general health and betterment of the conditions which affect health.

As a community, we should be constantly aware of all things which affect health. Individuals should protect their own physical wellbeing by undergoing regular physical check-ups. If they can afford it, by their own physicians. If not, there are clinics to which they can apply.

As a community, we should be ever alert to improve the conditions under which our people live. Below-standard housing, improper sanitation facilities, over-crowding, pollution of air or water, all are factors which depress our health standards. As such they are not only legitimate subjects of public concern, they should be imperative demands for public remedy.

"Health Week" is a good time to think on such things which should be our prime interest at all times.

Cultivate Originality

A young man with a good mind obtained the best technical training provided by American schools, and then lost his first job within a year.

Given a job that fitted his abilities, he would have made good; but he was placed in the research department, and he lacked the imagination to conceive new ideas.

In any one of 10,000 homes, you may find a little genius who can draw Jiggs and Popeye almost exactly as they appear in print. His parents think he will become a famous cartoonist, and so he may. But, alas! there is no profit in copying what another has originated. Anybody who can write or print letters can copy the comic strip dialog, but the copy wouldn't be worth anything.

A LITTLE NONSENSE now and then is relished by the wisest men, which explains why some comic strips become national institutions. They are delightful nonsense, sparkling with wit—as good in their way as anything in classic Alice.

Then the creators died. And though the pictures were as good as ever, the wit and charm and soul were gone. You have read that any man's place can be filled by another, but that isn't true of the genius who creates original ideas.

Does your favorite radio comedian seem less amusing than he was last year? It doesn't mean he is slipping. He has a new writer, and no man can make dull lines seem funny—though some of them wring laughs from stuff that is too old and feeble to be laughed at.

Originality may be a gift, but it can be cultivated. It pays dividends, for rut travelers are many and "idea men" are few.

DO YOU REMEMBER the old fan belt that wore out in a few months—or weeks? Men with ideas went to work on it, and now the belt lasts as long as the car.

A famous research engineer was asked to improve a certain kind of flat spring. He rigged a device to bombard it with tiny pellets of steel. Now it survives millions of bends, whereas formerly it broke after a few thousand. He still doesn't know what happens inside the bombarded shell. He "just had an idea," and it worked.

Edison "just had an idea" that sounds would make impressions on a paper-covered cylinder, and these impressions, by a reverse process, would repeat the sounds. Thus came electrical transcription and the juke box.

There is nothing in common use today but can be improved by a man with ideas. There is an unlimited field for new things.

Man made little progress for a million years or more. All that he has achieved has been done in the last 12,000 years—all of it by men who had new ideas and dared to explore and test them.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

A HALT NEEDED
(Elberton Star.)

It is most unfortunate for the country that there is so much loose talk about another world war. All nations recognize that it would bring devastation, probably destruction of our civilization. Yet there are warmongers or people who write to stir up sensation, who keep up the myth of a third war.

It may be psychology, it may be something else, but it is true that an idea, especially a sensational one, can be kept so stirred as to bring about the very thing they seemingly seek to bring about. Commentators, columnists and some editors ought to be silenced, if they haven't patriotism enough to keep silent. We should write and talk peace, honorable peace, and not war.

It's Easier Preached Than Practiced

A San Francisco counsel on marital affairs asked that his divorce hearing be postponed, he having a previous engagement to address a civic club on the subject: How To Be Happy Though Married.

As if he hadn't already been out too much making speeches when he should have been home making peace.

Professionally, his was the most embarrassing predicament since the annual picnic of the St. Louis Weatherman's Association was washed out by an unforeseen cloudburst.

I am familiar, of course, with the old adage about the shoemaker's child going barefoot. But I hardly expected a professional peacemaker to turn up bearing the scars of battle.

It is as though one had caught Emily Post blowing her soup, Dale Carnegie out making enemies, or Arthur Murray sprawled on the ballroom floor.

The civic club, too, faces a dilemma. The least it can do, in the interest of fair play, is to afford his wife an opportunity for rebuttal.

GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Republicans Could Lose 52 Seats

WASHINGTON — Through long-established practice it has become legitimate, of course, for both major parties to engage in extravagant claims as to the outcome of a pending election. It is a by-product of our peculiar political system.

Both sides usually are equally guilty. Modesty has no place in politics. Hence it is customary for the two major parties and most competing candidates, as a rule, to claim everything and concede nothing on the eve of an election.

Much of the recent talk about the Republicans gaining control of the Lower House of Congress in the coming November elections is now revealed to fall within this category. It is the usual political ballyhoo.

The Democrats have played an unkind trick on their ancient rivals. They have exposed them for political double-talk.

Danger Spots In some manner not entirely explained a confidential list prepared by the Republican National Committee, showing the "danger spots" in the congressional elections, has fallen into the hands of the Democratic National Committee.

The list names 52 incumbent Republican Congressmen who are admitted by the GOP National Committee to be in danger of losing their seats in November.

Gleefully, Democratic National Headquarters here has just published this information in the current issue of the party's official organ, The Democrat.

The only explanation made is that the list came to Democratic headquarters "inadvertently." It is said to have been sent out by the GOP National Committee on a "for-your-information-only" basis for the guidance of a national weekly magazine which has always leaned heavily toward the Republican party.

What makes the list an interesting political document is that Republican leaders, in releases and statements to the public, have been loudly proclaiming that the GOP would capture control of both the House and Senate in the elections of this year.

Ballyhoo To do that they must make a net gain of some 26 seats in the House and 10 in the Senate. The implication of the ballyhoo as it has been carried on is that few, if any, Republican seats are in jeopardy.

Now comes the admission of Republican headquarters, confidentially made, that the party is in danger of losing 52 House seats.

That does not mean that the Democrats are faced with prospects of increasing their present majority by 52 members. No one expects that to happen.

But it does mean that the battle over congressional control is a two-way affair—not the one-sided contest that the Republicans have pictured in their propaganda.

Regardless of the net outcome of an election, there are usually upsets on both sides. That is to say, inroads are made and losses are suffered by both parties.

In making claims to capturing the House in the approaching elections, the Republicans have placed emphasis on some 50 seats now held by Democrats. If a trend should develop in their direction, it is possible that most of these seats could be won by Republicans, or enough of them to give them control.

But in putting forward these claims GOP spokesmen have ignored (publicly) the 52 seats held by their own party which a similar trend in favor of the Democrats might cause them to lose.

In other words, the net effect of the situation, as viewed by the Republicans themselves, is nil. They see a fighting chance to win some 50 Democratic seats, while privately they concede the possibility of losing 52 of their own. That adds up to a net change of two seats.

Too Early It is perhaps too early yet to make a firm prediction as to the outcome of the November elections. The so-called political experts vary in their appraisals according to their own party leanings. But there is nothing in the record, as it has developed so far, to indicate any striking upheaval by the voters.

The revelation of the confidential danger list as prepared by GOP headquarters tends to bear this out. It remains to be seen how the campaign shapes up in the final weeks that lay ahead.

In the meantime, much of the claims that come from both major party headquarters may be written off as so much political ballyhoo.

HAROLD MARTIN

New, Angry Voice From Georgia Hills

We're burying part of him today
In Hickory Grove Churchyard;
We can't put him all here, for his grave
Spreads over a few rocky acres that he loved—
Where peach blossoms bloom, and cotton stalks speckle the ground
On a Georgia hill.

Forty years he's been digging and plowing himself under Along these cotton rows. Most of my Dad is there
Where the grass grows and cockle burrs bristle
Now that he's gone. . . .

We're covering him in March days when seeds sprout.
And I think next Autumn at picking time
The white-speckled stalks will be my old Dad
Bursting out. . . .

Don West wrote that poem. He is a school teacher, the Superintendent of Schools at Lula, Ga. It is called "Funeral Notes," and it is one of a hundred-odd harsh and angry poems he has gathered together in a book recently published called "Clods of Southern Earth."

Strange Verse They are strange poems. They say what they mean, and say it clearly, as clearly as the poem above speaks of the death of a farmer, old and tired.

There are no lines in them that the poet obviously fashioned for their rhythm. For West never sacrifices meaning to melody. He hits, hard, with a blunt and heavy hammer.

He achieved what he has set out to do, which was to give a voice to the working man. He speaks for the field hand, black and white; the sharecropper, the man in the mine, the women with the bent backs and the tireless, flickering hands who work in the cotton mills. He speaks for them as one of them, because he has made his living as they make theirs, by toil.

He thinks, as many think, that a poem should have its roots in the earth, that it should find beauty in the lives of the common people, that it should speak of the heartache and the sorrow of the plain folks, and that sometimes it should point the way ahead. For this kind of writing he is well equipped.

"I have," he says, "been a preacher and I've preached the working man, Jesus, who had some strange notions about the poor and the rich and the slaves. I have been a coal miner in Kentucky's Cumberlands and a textile worker in Carolina. I've been a radio commentator in Georgia and a deckhand on a Mississippi steamboat. I've been a sailor and a farm owner and a farmer. I am now a school superintendent. And I've always wondered why it always seems that the folks who work less get more and those who work more get less."

Memories "Maybe," he says, "it is because I am of an old Southern family . . . of men who wore jeans pants and women who wore linsey petticoats. . . . These were my people. I come from the Devil's Hollow region, close by Turkey Creek at the foot of Burnt Mountain in North Georgia. My earliest memories are woven around the struggles of my Dad and Mother to dig a living from a little mountain farm. Life always was hard—an iron fist mauling them in the face, knocking them down every time they tried to get up. But they wanted their kids to go to school, to get educated. We went, the whole bunch of us. There were nine kids, three now dead. All of the survivors are working today for a better South.

"I got something in schools, Vanderbilt, Chicago University, Columbia, Oglethorpe, University of Georgia, European schools. But my best education has been . . . beaten into me by the everlasting toil and hunger I have known . . . by the hunger I have seen in the face of sharecropper kids; by by own sister, wife of a sharecropper, dying young from overwork and worry. It is this education that caused a determination that I should never seek to rise upon the shoulders of others; to rise only when the great mass of plain people can also have a richer life. And some day we will. . . ."

"So I pass these poems on to you who may care enough to read. They are little pieces of life—and death—picked up along the way. May they help to kindle little sparks that will grow into big flames."

Sincerity It is hard to evaluate Don West's book in any respect save that of his anger and his sincerity. The employer, from manufacturer to farm owner, harassed by strikes, slow-downs and labor shortages, will snort his derision and call West an agitator and let it go at that, a charge that West himself would not deny. The average man in the street, moved by a nebulous liberalism, will feel there is truth in his writing, but that the picture he paints was truer 30 years ago than now. The man for whom he speaks, the sharecropper, the mill worker, the man down in the mine, will cheer him when he trumpets their cause—and repudiate him when he says the black man has an equal right to economic opportunity.

He walks a lonely road, his only companions the ghosts of other men who have hacked at the stone walls of wrong with the blunt knife of feeble words. But he is satisfied. For it is clear that he spoke of himself and the urge that drives him when, in the poem called "Prophet," he said:

"He could not live just for himself
And mutter of his doubts and fear;
He chose to challenge men to strive
To bring a fuller Kingdom near."

In recent years we've gone a considerable way toward that fuller Kingdom of which he speaks—farther perhaps than he in his anger and his memory of old suffering, realizes. Yet there is still a long way to go, as anybody knows who sees the Georgia of the worn-out farms, the off-the-high-road Georgia of thin land, lean crops, gaunt cattle and hungry men.

There are still plenty of people whom Don West may serve with his harsh, hard, protesting voice.

Annie Belle, Housecleaner

FORT VALLEY—I hadn't forgotten Annie Belle. Having once made her acquaintance no housekeeper could possibly get Annie Belle out of her mind. She is a pearl of great price and just as hard to get. Annie Belle is Fort Valley's dean of house cleaners.

She it is who precedes distant relatives due to arrive for a family reunion; come a wedding, and what the bride will wear and getting Annie Belle are of equal importance. Or if you want a clean house just for the novelty of it (as was the case with us), Annie Belle will take the situation in hand leaving you with a burning desire to kidnap her and put her under lock and key where nobody else can get at her.

WHEN SHE sees a scrub brush, the scrub brush shudders, not Annie Belle. Armed with wall brush, broom, mops, floor wax, furniture polish, woodwork cleaner and assorted rags and such, she marches through your house from front to back; upstairs and down. Positively nothing is left unmoved. Out comes the furniture, up come the rugs, down come the curtains, on goes Annie Belle.

When she has finished you can't believe your eyes. The curtains that couldn't survive another washing, did; the rugs that you have been sending to that rug-making place for 10 years but never got around to sending, look almost respectable.

ALL THIS Annie Belle did for us and then she disappeared. That was almost five years ago. The other day Annie Belle came to see us and when she had gone she had again left something clean and fresh and shiny.

Did I remember, she wanted to know, the two pillows I let her have? I did, but vaguely. Well, anyway, according to Annie Belle, she owed me one dollar and fifty cents for those pillows. It seemed that it had bothered her a lot, but her daughter had been sick for a long time and she couldn't leave her much to work. And what she made had to go for medical care. Now things are better. The daughter is well and has a good job in New Jersey; Annie Belle is working in the crate factory for good wages, and cleaning house when she has time to spare. Getting out her purse, then the handkerchief in her purse, Annie Belle did what she had come to do. She paid me for those pillows. And I took it. You don't refuse dignity and honesty.

No, once you know Annie Belle you don't forget her.

Fast Book And Tito

NEW YORK—The Daily Worker, the voice of the international Communist conspiracy, has justfied the murder of five unarmed American Army fliers by Joseph Broz, the Croatian Communist, known as Marshal Tito, in a Washington dispatch, published on Aug. 21, under the head: "Yugoslav crisis was made in U. S. A." The Worker said: "The U.S. State Department ignored repeated Yugoslav complaints concerning unauthorized flights over Yugoslav territory until two of those planes were shot down. This fact, which sheds new light on who is responsible for the growing tension between the U. S. and Yugoslavia, was learned by the Daily Worker today . . ."

The American planes were flying on peaceful errands over a country which, by decision of the late President Roosevelt, was delivered from captivity under Hitler to captivity under Stalin.

IN SUBMISSION to the Communist conspiracy, directed from Moscow, the United States had abandoned General Draja Mikhailovich, the commander of the Chetniks, who had set up the original counter-attack against the Nazi, because Mihailovich was no less hostile to the Red terror than to Hitler's Brown Bolshevism. The Communists in Moscow and the United States arranged for Tito's return to Yugoslavia. With American arms and by the aid of American soldiers, Tito ultimately became Joseph Stalin's governor and subdictator. He had studied Bolshevik treachery as a science in Russia and had soldiered with the Communists in Spain.

Howard Fast, a writer for many Communist publications, published a booklet in 1944, called "The Incredible Tito," in which he boasted that the money to finance Tito's return to Yugoslavia was provided by the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee of the United States.

SOME AMERICANS who contributed money and prestige to this committee may have believed that they were guilty of no more sinister act than the name of the Committee implied. Some Americans pictured refugees as gaunt and hunted Jews in flight from Hitler, and the Communists here again, as in many past performances, exploited with ruthless cynicism the humane instincts of gullible victims.

Innocently or knowingly, those who gave money to the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee did finance the rise of Tito against the patriot, Mihailovich. Mihailovich found himself fighting both the Nazis and Tito's Partisans, and was alleged to have "collaborated" with German and Italian officers in the later stages of his resistance in order to obtain weapons for the fight against Moscow. This may have been true because, by that time, Stalin, through Tito, had become a more dangerous enemy of Yugoslavia than Hitler and Mussolini. A few weeks ago, notwithstanding the fact that he had rescued many American flyers who fell into Yugoslavia fighting the Nazis, and notwithstanding his record of co-operation with the Americans and British, Mihailovich was "tried" by Tito's Bolshevik regime and shot as a patriotic enemy of his traitorous countryman, Tito.

THE UNITED STATES would not or could not save Mihailovich from the firing squad of the dictator who, a short time later, shot down five friendly American aviators on a harmless errand who had lost their way. Here was a historic desertion of a friend by the American Government.

Fast, who wrote "The Incredible Tito," is the author of historical distortion done in the form of a novel, paraphrasing the life of John Peter Altgeld, once Governor of Illinois. Altgeld was a radical in his time but no unmitigated hero. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt praised the book, apparently in ignorance of Altgeld's real story but aware of Fast's political background.

Louis Adamic, a naturalized immigrant from Yugoslavia, mentioned forty times in the official report of the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities, revealed himself as an intellectual but distinctly non-combatant partisan of Tito in his new dodger entitled "Dinner at the White House."

THE ROOSEVELTS were entertaining Winston Churchill on an official war mission and, with the curious courtesy for which they were noted, confronted him at dinner with this propagandist whose policies have thrown him into the company of the Communists in the United States. Adamic in common with the Communists, opposed the British plan to take the Balkan route to Germany in the invasion of Europe, a course which Churchill designed to frustrate Stalin's program of imperial domination. Roosevelt was persuaded and Adamic's fellow travelers won their way.

The five young Americans died for that policy, possibly only the first American dead in a war between Russia's Red Fascism and western civilization, at any rate, they were slaughtered without a chance to fight when they lost their way and flew over Yugoslavia.

IN "DINNER at the White House," Adamic writes that Mrs. Roosevelt's Secretary, Miss Thompson, said that people who criticized Mrs. Roosevelt "simply don't know what they're talking about. Westbrook Pegler, for instance."

"I said it was too bad Pegler had stopped writing about sports" Adamic wrote.

Browne, Bioff, Scalise, Fay, Bove, Gailmore, Morgenthau, Elliott and Jimmy Roosevelt and the Communist traitors of a dozen unions will concur in Adamic's regret.

But, I dare say, the families of the murdered flyers and many other Americans will concur in Pegler's opinion of Fast and Adamic.

CHICAGO—"Mrs. Louise Schoeffler, in suit for separate maintenance, accuses husband Otto of attempting to shove small puppy down her throat."—News item.

Some men are pretty lucky in the kind of mates they get
While others' wives will fill their lives with longing and regret,
But, one and all, they seem to fall and in their frenzied haste
Too often find they have the kind that doesn't suit their taste.

It's hard to see how they can be so definitely sure
The love they pledge won't lose its edge, its feverish allure,
The way they feel the great appeal some special women hold
Will never die until the sky and suns are dead and cold.

But in the range of years a change will sometimes come about,
Attentions paid and love displayed which left no room for doubt
Become so rare the loving pair cannot survive the shock—
And, sad to say, there comes a day the marriage is in hock.

And, to his shame, the man's to blame, too often in the case
And women bear more than their share in what they have to face,
For, if he can, deceiving man will teach his wife to follow
The lies he tells and they are more than anyone can swallow.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Foreign Affairs Will Decide Party Control

WASHINGTON—L'affaire Henry Wallace continues to stir interest and provoke debate, and naturally so.

One point frequently raised, and by some who know better, is worth noting because of its naivette. This is the criticism that the Secretary of Commerce took foreign affairs into politics, as if that were a crime. He did, and intentionally.

Foreign affairs is hip-deep in politics in this country. It always has been. It always will be. From now on, this undoubtedly will be more true than ever, or should be, for our world has contracted so that what happens elsewhere affects everyone of us. It is truly a crossroads issue.

It is in politics, irrespective of Henry Wallace and what he said at Madison Square Garden. The reason is simple. We are having an election in a few weeks in which we will choose a House of Representatives and a third of the Senate, our first election since the war.

CONGRESS WILL have much to do with the course of our foreign affairs in the next two years, as it has in the past. It is nice to say that it shouldn't become a controversial issue, but it will and must. Look back at what happened in the last Congress.

There was, for example, a division—with some stiff and sizable Republican opposition—on measures that were a definite part of a program of international co-operation, and essential to its success. Among them were the reciprocal tariff program, extension of selective service, the British loan. Anyone who watched those battles closely knows they were won only after hard work, for there were some few Democratic defections to make the issue critical. A defeat in any one of them, and others on related matters, would have taken us back toward isolationism.

These issues will persist in other forms and perhaps even in the same forms if there is a decided reaction. Henry Wallace knows that and so do those who watched those battles. They are issues on which you will vote in November.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS were an issue in primaries in some key contests. It was that issue largely, for example, that defeated two leading isolationists, Senators Shipstead, Republican, Minnesota, and Wheeler, Democrat, Montana

There was a sort of truce on foreign affairs in the 1944 Presidential election. Gov. Dewey commendably went along with President Roosevelt on the fundamental issue of international co-operation. Mr. Roosevelt, himself, was effective in bringing agreement among Democratic and Republican leaders in the Senate on the basic issue of international co-operation, with the help of former Sec. Cordell Hull. This produced the happy result of a sweeping victory for the United Nations.

But thereafter in Congress the truce went off on various essential measures, without which UN would have been a useless mechanism. As a matter of fact, many Republicans in Congress never have followed their presidential candidates on foreign policy. This was demonstrated both in the cases of Wendell Willkie and Gov. Dewey.

RIGHT NOW there are acres of distance between such a national Republican leader as Harold Stassen and many Republicans in Congress. Also the GOP high command, unlike Mr. Stassen and some others, has emphasized repeatedly the anti-Russian issue and played up to that sentiment, sometimes but not always in a back-handed, devious manner, as a reading of National Republican Chairman Carroll Reece's frequent speeches will reveal.

It was that sort of thing Henry Wallace was talking about. Nor is it confined to Republicans, nor to politicians. It is something that is hard to pin down, for there is so much double talk. But it is clear to anyone familiar with the influences at work now.

Partianship, it is said, should stop at the water's edge. Very good. But foreign policy is made in what happens this side of the water's edge, here at home, in Congress and elsewhere. It is for the decision of the people. The issue is before them right now. It is well to be conscious of that and not to be misled by some who would like the issue to be disregarded in the coming election.

And Henry Wallace has nothing to do with that. It's the normal process of our democracy.

SENATOR SOAPER

IT WAS another eminent Russian, Pavlov, who first discovered the conditioned reflex—a pretty instance of which is Molotov's automatic no.

THE UNSPEAKABLE Mihailovich fought the enemy for a while, then fired on his pals. Whereas Tito fought the enemy for a while, then fired on his pals.

IT IS NO SMALL thing, this knack our President has for looking like the ex-haberdasher when swimming, even.

DANGEROUSLY LOW flying is complained of in the cities with skyscrapers, while in Iowa the annual agitation is on for installing beacons on the taller corn.

GALLUP POLL

Tennessee Vet Fight

PRINCETON, N. J.—The "battle" which war veterans staged at Athens, Tenn., when they wrested control of the town government from an entrenched political machine, has met with a mixed reaction throughout the rest of the country.

The issue has considerable national significance. There are reports that veterans in other states are contemplating similar action to get rid of political machines like that which ruled Athens and the surrounding McMinn County.

THE SURVEY shows that about five in every 10 voters (52 per cent) have heard or read about the Athens affair. These were asked:

"What do you think about what the veterans did in the recent local election in Athens, Tenn.

When analyzed, the replies of the 52 per cent who had heard or read of the affair fell into the following general categories:

All right, or all right under the circumstances	25%
Good idea but wrong method, they went too far, shouldn't have used violence	20
No opinion	7
	52%

Among World War II veterans 74 per cent had heard or read of the Athens affair. Their reactions contrast as follows with those of the general public:

All right, or all right under the circumstances	46%
Good idea but wrong method, they went too far, shouldn't have used violence	26
No opinion	2
	74%

CHANNING COPE

Security Worthless Without Opportunity

It's probably a good thing that people as a whole do not take themselves too seriously. Here and there is some pompous person who has no sense of humor and hies himself behind a set of buzzers and secretaries and hard chairs (for the visitors) and comes to believe that he amounts to something beyond the ordinary. But, in the main, there are few such individuals. Most folks are friendly and warmhearted and democratic.

Maybe there is a divine intelligence down under there that causes the average citizen to be wary of the great minds or great personages.

THE EARTHBOUND ones who make up 99 percent of our America, look down under their feet at the good earth, glance around at their doting families, loving friends and kindly neighbors, and know that all of this is good. Then they look afar off to the great (those occupying the chairs of leadership, at least) and to the affairs they are concerned with, and find only frustration and confusion. One can almost FEEL the yearning of the people to get their national life on the same plane as their personal lives. They want plain, wholesome, American family life, with friends and neighbors, and a reasonable amount of security for those who try. But somehow, they cannot find it.

EVEN IN THE face of present full employment and of record-breaking production, there is an element of hopelessness imbedded deep in our minds and which conditions our thinking and outlook on life. There are few happy faces or hearts. The only thing plentiful is money.

Certainly it isn't making for much happiness. Everybody is fussing at everybody else. Walk into the food stores on busy days and observe the baffled expression on the faces of those who are dependent upon those stores for their victuals. Not only because they cannot get what they want, but because of the frightening prices. Talk then to the manager of this store and you find that instead of being happy over his prices and total sales, he is harried and frustrated, and is ready to call off the whole deal and go out of business.

DIP INTO the manufacturing situation and you find that the fellow who was the great patriot during the war, because of his ability to turn out the stuff which was needed to win the war, is now being fly-blown from every direction, and is now spending his days with auditors and his nights in worried wakefulness.

The only people we know who are going along in the old-fashioned way, working a little, spending a little, saving a little, helping a little, loving a little and progressing a little are the average farmers of Georgia. Those who own their farms and live upon them, work them, improve them and enjoy them. These are the folks with good appetites, restful beds, normal family lives and zestful outlooks. These are the folks with security (as much as anyone) and, more important, they have that enobling thing called "opportunity," without which the whole of life seems dull. This column is not written with the view of adding to the frustration, but by way of pointing to those who have in a large measure found that for which we are all searching—happiness.

LSU's Mister Moore Feeling Pretty Low

Editor's Note: This is the sixth of a series of articles on prospects of Southeastern Conference football teams this season. Others will follow.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 18—The boys around the league are rating Bernie Moore's L. S. U. team as the one most likely to succeed if Alabama should fail in the Southeastern Conference football race and so far little or nothing has come from Moore to refute the rating.

But we found Mr. Moore feeling lower than the little man who sat on the cigarette paper and swung his legs over the edge.

Here is what he had to say about his 1946 L. S. U. team and if it be optimism—well, confidentially, what do you think of the Crackers' chances next year?

"I just don't know about this team," Moore said. "I'm not at all satisfied with the progress made to date. The boys are not learning the signals on account of the fact we have so many new men. Our scrimmage last Saturday against a small neighboring college was terrible.

"We have had a series of minor injuries, especially in the backfield, which have hindered us to the point that very few of our players are in shape."

"Well, er, Coach . . . now wait a minute . . ."

Moore didn't slow down. "We play Rice the opening game of the season. Jess Neely admits he has the best squad in history. If our boys don't get in condition this week, we'll be in desperate shape for Rice."

Bernie wasn't purposely putting out a bear story. He felt that way without reservation. The assistant coaches knew how he felt, more than ever following a staff meeting which lasted the better part of the afternoon.

About the only near-optimistic statement Moore made was that the Tigers have potentially good material. A glance at the roster tends to prove this.

L. S. U., which lost only to Alabama and Mississippi State last season, can't be as bad as they look to the coach right now. There's too many good football players around. It's true many of them are ex-service men, a term which Moore wants to eliminate, who are finding it difficult to get back into playing condition.

Moore objects to placing veterans in a separate category, saying they are now college students and should be termed merely as "squad members" in fairness to them and other players on the team.

Every other squad in the conference has ex-GIs in playing condition and there is no reason to assume the Tigers won't have the same thing before their opening game with Rice on Sept. 28.

Fine Line Backers L. S. U. will have two of the finest linebackers in the country. They are brothers, Chuck Schroll, a center, and Bill Schroll, a fullback. Chuck is rated the better of the pair but Bill is not far behind.

Both are big, powerful tacklers, the center weighing 195 and Bill 205. Both are sophomores, each winning a letter in 1943 before going off to war. However, each is having a fight on his hands for the starting position.

At center, it's a nip-and-tuck battle between Chuck and Buck Ballard, 210, 6-3, sophomore, who played second string in 1942. Mel Didier and Apple Sanders are behind this pair.

L. S. U.'s choice candidate for All-American is Walter "Piggy" Barnes, a large tackle who, they say, is "big, fast, rough and possessed with football savvy. "Well, that's about all necessary for a tackle, but in case you're interested in how big, it's 233 at present and he hopes to play at 225. Barnes is 6-2, and played with the Third Air Force team while in the service.

At the other tackle is Fred Land, 214-pound junior, who has won two letters. His understudy, Ed Champagne, 215, 6-3, sophomore, is regarded as a great prospect but has been hampered with an injured ankle.

Earl Tullos, a senior letterman, Holly Heard, junior letterman, and two freshmen, Red Baird and Allen Hover, are other tackles currently on the varsity roster. The smallest of the tackles is Tullos, who weighs 209.

At guards, it looks like Wren Worley, 195-pound first-stringer in 1942, and Russ Foti, 205, a freshman at L. S. U. in 1942. Herd Miller and Fred Hall, two senior lettermen, are running second team with Harvey Core, a junior, and Pete Bluntzer, a freshman, handling the third team spots.

Clyde Lindsey, All-Southeastern at left end last year is back, and is holding his own against the challenges of two freshmen, Ray Bullock, and Ray Leach, who are after the job.

The other side of the line finds three men fighting for the job. Mo Richmond, a 212-pound senior, probably will be the starter but Sophomore Abner Wimberly and Freshman Jeff Adams, 9.8 second man, are not letting him take it easy.

Knight Is Back Red Knight is the boy in the backfield. He is an 185-pound senior who has played regular fullback for three years. He made the All-Conference team last year and scored 51 points, including three on a last-minute field goal to win the Georgia Tech game.

Bill Schroll played first team in 1943 but is slow getting in shape, same as Jeff Burkett, another senior.

At right halfback, Moore will use Dan Sandifer, 184-pound junior who is rated as the best all-round back on the team. However, he had an appendectomy during the Summer and likewise is not yet in shape. Speedy Williard Landry is running on the second team and Joe Glamp the third.

Jim Cason, junior letterman who weighs only 165, is figured the starting tailback. Dale Gray, Al Heroman and Bobby Clegg, three freshmen, are fighting it out for the other two varsity berths.

At quarterback, the Tigers have Y. A. Tittle, a great passer and Ray Coates who played left-half last season. Both are triple-threaters and one is likely to play as much as the other. Tittle has completed 21 or 24 passes against Tulane in his two-year career and Coates averaged 5.1 yards a try last season.

Charley Percy, a freshman, will be on the third team.

The Tigers are well heeled in the backfield. Tittle is as good a passer as most of them and Knight and Burkett can punt with any.

Tech May Use Broyles Sparingly Against Vols

By TOM MILLER

The surprising progress of the banged-up shoulder of Frank Broyles was disclosed yesterday when Georgia Tech's Bobby Dodd revealed hopes that he may be able to use his No. 1 quarterback sparingly against Tennessee's Vols on Sept. 28.

Dodd made it plain, however, he would use the red-haired sparkplug of the Yellow Jackets only if the shoulder continued its present rate of improvement and then only in a signal calling capacity. He has no intentions of putting Broyles into the lineup, even in a limited capacity, if any chance remains of aggravating the injury, a bone separation, suffered 10 days ago.

As Broyles worked his passing range up to a labored 25 yards, Dodd credited the veteran's intense desire to get back with the team and his rigid adherence to doctor's orders for the improvement.

Although Frank's passing and kicking leave little to be desired, his greatest worth to the team comes from his quarterbacking. A keen student of the game and a play analyst second to none, his presence on the field, even for a limited time, would increase immeasurably the potency of the Tech offense—particularly in any clutch situation.

It is for such a spot and for the morale of the Jacket varsity that Dodd nurses the hope that Broyles may be ready.

In practice yesterday the Tech coaching staff set up an assembly line type drill. While Coach Dodd drilled one group on pass defense, Line Coach Bob Woodruff worked another group on defense against Tennessee running attack and Assistant Coach Ray Ellis put a third group through its offensive paces. Finishing with one phase, the groups rotated to another.

Dinky Bowen, the veteran halfback shifted to fullback, who reported Monday from the Army Air Forces, missed yesterday's practice. He went to Ft. Bragg, N. C., to pick up his papers of discharge.

Although downfield blocking left much to be desired, the first string, paced by a corps of fleet backs, ripped through a scrub defense freely in a long scrimmage session.

Jack Griffin, former Boys High star end, has made the jump to the varsity squad and looked well on one of the flanks. Although a year or two away from his peak, Girffin is stamped for future greatness at the Flats.

Crackers Win Pel Series

Memphis Plays Here On Friday

By F. M. WILLIAMS

A couple of guys named Bill put the Crackers in the finals of the Shaughnessy play-off last night with a 9-to-8 nightmarish victory over the New Orleans Pelicans before 5,666 fans at Ponce de Leon Park.

Bill Ayers and Bill Goodman were the heroes of the victory filled with thrills and base hits from the very first inning until the last.

Ayers, who came to Earl McGowan's rescue in the seventh inning to barely protect an early lead piled up by the Crackers, singled home the run that won the game in the bottom half of the same inning.

Goodman, who hauled down a couple of tough fly balls in left field, got four hits in as many trips to the plate, scoring three times and batting across two others with a triple in the fifth inning. He was the big noise, offensively, for the winners.

The Pelicans, fighting gamely all the way, never knew when they were licked. They came back four times to get into the ball game after Cracker rallies had apparently sunk them.

But in the end they lacked just a little of having enough to gain a victory.

Mgr. Johnny Peacock's club took the lead in the first on a walk to Jack Tobin, Red Lavigne's single to center and Pete Lewis' fly to right, but the Crackers came back with two runs in their half of the inning.

After Lloyd Gearhart had struck out, Goodman rifled a single to left. Ted Cieslak struck out and Catcher Mark Carrola had Goodman caught off first so far that the little outfielder made no effort to get back but instead broke for second and made it safely as George Byam was groping to tag him at first.

BATES SINGLES

Buddy Bates popped a single to right to score Goodman and Bates raced all the way across from first when Charley Glock doubled to left.

The Pels fought back with a run in the third on Tobin's hit and stolen base and a single by Byam but the Crackers erased the knot quickly with a pair of tallies in their half of the same frame. Gearhart walked and Goodman bunted perfectly. Byam attempted to catch Bill at first, but threw into right field and Gearhart came home with Goodman moving to third. Cieslak singled to score him.

The Crackers made it 6 to 2 in the fourth and got Jesse Danna out of the box. Two were out when Gearhart walked again and Goodman singled. Cieslak singled Gearhart home and Bates doubled to drive Goodman across. Jim Shea came in to quell the uprising. Runs came in pairs, so the Pels got two in the fifth on a walk to Tobin and hits by Lavigne, Lewis and Carrola to pull back in the thick of the fight.

Right back the Crackers battled with Goodman slashing a triple down the left-field line after Bob Benish had singled and Gearhart had been hit by a pitched ball.

LAYDEN HOMERS

Pete Layden hit an inside the park homer in the seventh, driving in Byam, who had singled, and Ayers took over for McGowan.

Bill was put in for his pitching ability but it turned out that his bat was more important. Red Mathis opened the Cracker seventh with a walk and went to second when Benish bunted a third strike. Ayers cracked a single through the box to score him.

The Pelicans got a pair of runs in the ninth on Layden's single and Danny Doyle's homer over the right-field signs but Babe Ellis crashed into the wall in right to pull down Bo Strickland's drive and that broke the visitors' spirit as Ayers got the next two out.

The Crackers will open the second half of the play-off here Friday night against the Memphis Chicks, who eliminated Chattanooga last night. Tickets go on sale at Muse's Friday morning for both Friday's and Sunday's games.

Shelby Kinney probably will be Mgr. Ki Ki Cuyler's choice to pitch the game.

A MENACE TO CLEMSON—Capt. Charley Trippi, one of the nation's greatest backs, is the man carrying most of Georgia's hopes against the cocky Clemson Tigers, who open the Bulldog season a week from Friday night in Athens. Clemson, a Southern Conference powerhouse, has publicly announced that if Trippi is stopped, then Georgia will be defeated. Now if the coaches can just figure out how to do that, then the football season in this section will be under way with one of the major upsets of the year.

Louis Wins in First; Tami Jars Joe Once

By DAVID J. WALSH

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(INS)—Quite in accordance with rule and rote, Joe Louis, retained his world heavyweight championship tonight in the second defense of the title this year.

He won in many respects his most spectacular victory with a first-round knockout of Tami Mauriello, Bronx heavyweight who was bludgeoned to the floor with 51 seconds of the first round still remaining.

But, before he passed out on the party, his disdained 10-to-1 shot in the betting sent the crowd of 30,000 into a panic with a near knockout of Louis—and on practically the first punch of the fight.

It was a wild-swinging right which followed close upon a left lead, with the former landing on the crown of Lewis' slightly balding head and almost up-ending him then and there.

For a dramatic moment the champion seemed almost suspended by an unseen wire as he wavered, transfixed, in his tracks.

Then in a gangling precipitate sprawl, he went careening all the way from mid-ring into the ropes facing the third base line.

So violent was this rearward plunge, it seemed remarkable that Louis didn't go down with the blow.

But upon hitting the ropes, he recovered a measure of poise and strength—and as the rabid Tami, scenting a great victory in the offing, rushed in for the finisher, Joe was ready.

Even as Mauriello was scoring with a left and right, Louis was uncorking the counter that changed the course of a tremendously dramatic round.

Mauriello, an awkward, bandy-legged black-thatched specimen with a strangely emotionless eye, even sought to nail Louis before the inevitable "beheader" caught him in a vital spot. But Joe wasn't fooling now. Not after that first surprise punch.

He was fooling so little, in fact, that he gave the most workmanlike exhibition of his career in finishing the tough Italian. First he sent him reeling against the ropes again with a right.

Then, staying on top of his victim, Joe brought a tremendous overhand right down on the other's chin. It was a down-right bash—the kind detective fiction likes to refer to as effected by a heavy, blunt instrument.

Tami's eyes switched in all directions under the impact, but he stayed braced against the floor with outthrust feet, with the ropes at his back.

With that, Joe switched down below, heaved a homeric right uppercut to the body; then without waiting, crossed the punch to the chin. Another right cross followed—and so did Tami Mauriello, to the floor on hands and knees.

He made no effort to alter that posture as the count tolled remorselessly forward to 10.

After the knockout, a radio announcer climbed into the ring with a microphone to interview the fighters. The still groggy Mauriello said:

"Joe Louis is a great champion."

Then the announcer asked Tami if he thought he had Louis when he landed a hard right shortly after the fight began.

"Yeah, I thought I was going to knock him out," Mauriello replied. "Then I just got too G—— d——d careless."

TAMI, HEP, ROCKS; JOE, CALM, SOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(AP) An hour before he entered the ring against Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, Challenger Tami Mauriello was singing and dancing in his dressing room to a song entitled "When You Sock Them You Rock Them." The music was supplied by two friends who played mouth organs.

Mauriello raised such a racket that the handlers of Champion Joe, just a few doors away, sent word by a deputy boxing commissioner to "please be quiet; Louis is sleeping."

Butts Seeks Reserves for Bulldog Line

ATHENS, Sept. 18—Georgia's line worked overtime in a long offensive drill here today as Coach Wally Butts sought to strengthen the Bulldogs' forewall for the Clemson opener next week.

The Bulldog backs, headed by Capt. Charlie Trippi and a trio of fine right halfbacks, Jim Gatewood, John Donaldson and Eli Maricich, are the strong point of the team. The line, however, from tackle to tackle, has been Butts' No. 1 problem since the first day of practice. Failure to find adequate reserves for Tackles Bulldog Williams and Jack Bush and Guards Herb St. John and Howard Johnson is causing the Georgia mentor no end of worry.

Emil Papa, although handicapped by a bad leg, gives Williams adequate relief at right tackle. Andy Perhach, from last season's team, also will help, but behind Bush the load will fall on either Chub Jenkins or Fred Marshall, both inexperienced freshmen.

Carl George, Valdosta freshman, seems to have cinched the second-string spot behind St. John. He is backed up by Porter Payne, transplanted fullback. Al Jeffery and Gene Alexander are Johnson's top reliefs, but neither is as good as might be desired.

Mike Cooley, handicapped by a bad knee, will support Freshman John Terry at center, as will Jerry Deleski and Joe Chesna.

Georgia's regular backs worked on passing in dummy scrimmage and were sent to the showers before the scrimmage began. The regular line worked against defensive teams ahead of reserve backs.

Numerous minor injuries still hamper the Bulldogs, but barring further mishap everybody will be ready to go against Clemson.

White Provision Wins Over Prison Nine, 4-1

Manager DeWitt Spence twirled his White Provision team to a 4-1 win over Federal Prison at Bennett Field, giving up but three safeties in a pitcher's battle with Fishpeddler Rivera. The latter also gave only three hits in losing his second game of the year. Ragged fielding by the Fed infield accounted for the first two runs scored by the visitors, but the final pair came across on Robinson's sclid double down the left-field foul line in the eighth frame.

The Feds play host to the New Holland team next Sunday.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 18—(AP)—The vanguard of 60 top national ranking women golfers arrived today to start sharpening their shots over Southern Hills Country Club in preparation for the Women's National Amateur Championship, opening next Monday.

Early arrivals included Miss Helen Sigel, of Philadelphia; Miss Jean Hopkins, of Cleveland; Mrs. Kenneth Pearson, of Houston, Tex.; Mrs. Jacqueline Punc, of Hawaii, and Miss Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs. Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, of Denver, was expected later in the day.

Most of the women plan to start practice rounds tomorrow. Two days of 36-hole qualifying will start Monday over the 6,232-yard par-72 course. First match play will be Wednesday, with finals Saturday.

Chicks Rally To Win, Enter Play-off Finals

MEMPHIS, Sept. 18—The Memphis Chicks came from behind here tonight to beat Chattanooga, 5-3, and go into the finals of the Shaughnessy play-offs against Atlanta's pennant-winning Crackers. Harrell Toenes held Memphis to one run until the eighth when the Chicks tallied three times to go ahead and win. Memphis won the series, 4 and 2.

Happy at Brooklyn, Leo Hopes To Stay

By CASWELL ADAMS

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(INS)—By this time, everyone must know that this pillar of sporting truth considers Leo Durochesr a really great manager. And this pillar also likes Leo a lot personally.

The other night, after the Dodgers had been skulled by the Cubs and set back in the race against the Cardinals, Leo was as gay as if he'd beaten the Red Sox 10-0. He calmly discussed the game, and took all the blame personally. Then he told about his connections with the Dodgers.

"I'm strictly a Dodger. Maybe, if Larry MacPhail offered me $100,000 I might have to take it. But not for less. Mr. Rickey has been swell to me and I want to stay with the Dodgers as long as Rickey will have me. Why switch? Brooklyn's my kind of town. I understand Brooklyn and Brooklyn seems to understand me."

Durocher is a curious sort of fellow. He was born just 40 years ago in West Springfield, Mass., and he played with real tough kids who liked to scrap and fight and toss other kids into the near-by river near the old covered bridge. He came up the hard way. No quarter asked. None given. That's the way he manages a ball club, too.

Durocher is a gay guy. He likes gay clothes. He likes to be seen with incredibly pretty women. He's strictly first cabin from the start. He moves in society and flawlessly. The Durocher of the drawing room is a lot different guy from the fellow who shouts at the umpires at Ebbets Field.

As a manager he's tops. He has the other managers going slowly nuts as he plays the game. Durocher manages his ball club the way he plays cards—strictly deadpan. He steals a base when it's all wrong to try. He loves to keep making changes in his line-up. Switching pitchers, hitters, runners until the other club is slightly daffy at the display of gambling strength.

St. Louis Handcuffed By Sain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Johnny Sain, rubber-armed Boston right-hander, last night pitched the Braves to a 2-1 victory over the National League-leading St. Louis Cardinals. The loss reduced the Redbirds' lead to a game and a half.

Ralph Branca pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers to a split in their double-header with the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday at Ebbetts Field when he held the Bucs to five hits as the Brooks won the second game, 3-0.

The Pirates surprised with a first game 3-2 win behind Lefty Fritz Ostermueller.

Scoring three runs in the eighth inning, the Chicago Cubs broke a 1-1 tie and went on to defeat the New York Giants, 4-3, at the Polo Grounds.

Frank McCormick singled in the fourth inning with the bases loaded to drive in both runs which gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 2-1 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds in the first game of a double-header before an estimated 12,000 fans at Philadelphia. The Phillies also captured the second game when they shoved across two runs in the last of the ninth for a 6-5 decision.

Chandler Wins 18th, But Yanks Drop 2d

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fine relief pitching by 41-year-old Carl Caldwell enabled the Chicago White Sox to defeat the New York Yankees, 9-7, and gain an even break in their double-header yesterday at Chicago. The Yankees, helped by a pair of homers by Charlie Keller, won the opener, 4-0, as Spud Chandler registered his 18th victory.

The Washington Nats combined four home runs and a seven-hit pitching job by Southpaw Mickey Haefner to defeat the Cleveland Indians 8 to 1 at Cleveland. Sherry Robertson, Mickey Vernon, Jake Early and Stan Spence rapped circuit smashes.

The Boston Red Sox, with Manager Joe Cronin and a half-dozen of his top flight performers back home resting for the World Series, still carried enough reserve power last night to lambast the St. Louis Browns and their ace righthander, Jack Kramer, 6 to 2.

Roy Cullenbine's tenth-inning single with two out and the bases loaded enabled the Detroit Tigers to edge the Philadelphia Athletics 2 to 1 at Detroit as Hal Newhouser gave up only three hits in achieving his twenty-fifth pitching victory of the year. Phil Marchildon was the loser.

Midget Racing Ends At Lakewood Tonight

Atlanta's last midget auto racing program of the season will be presented tonight at the Lakewood Park track, beginning at 7:30.

Fifteen or more of the Southeast's leading drivers will compete in the eight-race program, which will be climaxed with the 20-lap main event.

Contestants include Wayne Wynn, Tampa, Fla., the big money winner in most previous midget races here; Bill Blalock, G. L. Strickland and Dan Coker, of Atlanta; Jimmy Hicks, of Decatur; Billy Yates, of Macon; Bernard Fox, Fort Benning; Bill McCamy and "Shorty" Johns, Miami, and Bill Curry, St. Paul, Minn.

Qualifying trials will begin at 7:30.

Dean Bowls 414

H. Dean set a season bowling record last night in the Capital City League at the Lucky Strike Alleys when he registered a 414 set which included games of 136, 146, and 132. Dick Kimbro bowled a high game of 164 for Hotel Roxy.

Man Freed In Ball Park Gaming Case

The first of 11 defendants arraigned on a charge of maintaining a gaming place in the bleachers of the Atlanta baseball park was acquitted by a jury in the Criminal Court of Fulton County after a trial before Judge Jesse M. Wood.

Sol. Gen. Lindley W. Camp said he would place the other defendants on trial at an early date.

The defendant acquitted yesterday was Claude C. Dooley, of 135 Memorial Dr. Atlanta Patrolmen I. G. Cowan and John Crankshaw testified they had been instructed to break up gambling in the bleachers at the ball park and said they made a case against Dooley after having seen him offering bets on incidents of the game several times.

Defense Attorneys Claude Grizzard and Jimmy Venable contended that, as a mere spectator at a ball game, Dooley could not be convicted of maintaining a gaming place. The ball club maintained the bleachers, they said.

When arrested, many said that the 11 men could not be convicted because they were not charged with gaming in a place with a roof. However, the fact that the bleachers have no roof played little part in yesterday's trial.

Chattanooga Loses Another Ball Toter

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 18—(AP)—The University of Chattanooga lost another tailback today when Jack Hoover, of Mount Calm, Texas, departed to enroll at Mississippi Southern.

Unless completely satisfied and delighted with your rapid improvement, your money back is guaranteed. So don't suffer another day without trying Cystex.

Britons, Too, Have Done With Brunette Bread

LONDON, Sept. 18—(UP)—The Ministry of Food Wednesday gave permission to millers to reduce the wheat extraction rate from 90 to 85 percent in a move interpreted as a prelude to suspension of bread rationing.

The reduction means that bread will be light instead of dark brown. Prewar white bread came from a 70 percent extraction rate.

VA To Examine 'Side Deal' in Vet's Home Buy

A case involving a "side deal" in sale of a home to an Atlanta veteran has been turned over to the Veterans' Administration's legal department for possible legal action, Amos H. Ward, Supervising Loan Guarantee Officer, Southeastern Branch VA, disclosed yesterday.

Ward withheld names of principals involved and the amounts of payments, but said a payment "on the side" was required of a home-buying veteran in addition to the sale price of the home, as set forth in his application for a GI loan.

Ward pointed out to real estate operators that VA cannot guarantee any GI loan where purchase price is in excess of "reasonable value" established by an approved appraiser.

Any deal whereby a veteran who has negotiated a GI loan pays a greater amount than the original appraised value is contrary to law, even though the veteran has the money required and is willing to enter into the transaction, the officer said.

State Milk Board Collects $56,210, Thrasher Reports

Georgia's Milk Control Board collected $56,210 in fees from milk producers, distributors and stores during the past fiscal year, a report by State Auditor B. E. Thrasher, Jr., showed yesterday.

These fees were turned into the general State Treasury and the Board received a legislative appropriation of $46,000 for operating expenses. Operating costs for the year were $38,215, as compared with $32,525 during the preceding fiscal year.

In another audit made public yesterday, Thrasher reported that expenses of the General Assembly increased almost $200,000 over the preceding year. Publishing of the new Constitution and a pay raise for the legislators accounted for this, the report showed.

Operating costs for the past fiscal year were $449,828. The figure the year before was $247,402.

RESINOL OINTMENT AND SOAP

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag everytime you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre, cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those tha are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effectiv in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Government High On Cotton Yield, Tom Linder Says

Georgia farmers lost from $20 to $25 a bale because the Federal Government over-estimated the cotton crop last year, Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder declared yesterday.

As he observed that the Federal Government's estimate last year was more than one million bales too high, Linder reiterated his contention that the national Agriculture Department is over-estimating the 1946 cotton crop.

"The Government's forecast is for 9,171,000 bales," Linder said, "while according to their own figures the indicated crop is only 8,536,000 bales. According to their own figures, they have over-estimated this crop 635,000 bales. My own estimate is even lower than this. I do not believe this crop will go much, if any, over 8,000,000 bales."

Tax Trials Heavy In Federal Court

Thirty alleged violations of internal revenue laws are included in 66 criminal cases scheduled for trial or arraignment before Federal District Judge E. Marvin Underwood during the October term of United States District Court.

Court will open Oct. 7, with 20 persons scheduled for arraignment in 11 cases, and 11 individuals slated for trial in nine cases.

A calendar released by the United States Attorney's Office here yesterday disclosed that approximately 100 persons will be tried for Federal offenses here. In addition, United States Atty. M. Neil Andrews said, criminal cases upon which indictments will be returned by the Federal grand jury during the preceding week will be called for trial.

Six alleged OPA conspiracies, four thefts of Government property, three income tax evasions and two cases of crime on a Government reservation, involving assault with attempt to kill, are listed on the October calendar. Other cases charge narcotic, postal, motor vehicle, white slavery and other violations.

Still Seized in Fulton

A still of 30-gallon capacity was seized in a raid by Fulton County police in the woods about two miles from Alpharetta off the Alpharetta Road yesterday. Participating in the raid were J. D. Roberts, Aubrey Thompson, George Davis and Clarence Nelms. They reported they poured out about 500 gallons of mash.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(AP)—Leading stocks tumbled one to more than seven points in today's market as a late selling wave engulfed all departments and put a number of issues at new lows for the year or longer before supporting bids stemmed the tide.

Brokerage quarters generally attributed the fresh bear thrust to pessimism over strikes, particularly in the automotive field; wage-price problems affecting industry and persistently cloudy domestic and foreign political affairs. A number of clients, it was added, who had been holding their accounts on the hope of a good technical rally, apparently decided to unload.

Losing tendencies prevailed from the start but dealings were moderate until the final hour when heavy liquidating orders put the ticker tape as much as two minutes late for a while. The pace then slowed appreciably and extreme setbacks were trimmed in most cases at the close. Transfers expanded to 2,100,000 shares compared with Tuesday's smallest turnover for the month to date of 1,390,000.

Railroad bonds once more found a downward track in today's trading. Losses were comparatively small but some of the carriers posted new lows for the year or more. Neither buyers nor sellers appeared too anxious to force the pace of business.

Among curb sliders were Catalin, Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share, Elliott Co., Creole Petroleum and Raytheon. Harvard Brewing was up a small fraction in the wake of a boosted dividend. Turnover here was 600,000 shares versus 420,000 yesterday.

U. S. Orders Draft-Age Guards Subject to Call

The War Department has issued an amended order to permit induction of draft-age men into the National Guard on provision that these men can be called by Selective Service, headquarters of the Seventh Army has announced here.

This amendment clears up a dispute between State Adj. Gen. Marvin Griffin and State Selective Service Director Cliff Hatcher on the eligibility of draft-age men for the National Guard and the drafting of National Guardsmen into the Army.

Under the new order, men between the ages of 19 and 29 joining the National Guard must sign a waiver permitting their induction by Selective Service into the Army, the announcement said.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

VA To Hunt Positions For Disabled Persons

Special units will be set up by the Veterans' Administration Branch Office in Atlanta and Regional VA offices in the Southeastern States to interview and place employable persons with physical disabilities, John M. Slaton, Jr., VA Deputy Administrator, has announced.

Slaton said yesterday a survey will be made of all positions within the VA that can be competently filled by physically disabled persons. When vacancies in these positions occur, the physically handicapped will be given every opportunity to qualify, he said.

Atlantans Post Bonds In Sugar Stamp Charges

Three Atlantans allegedly involved in a "conspiracy to violate OPA regulations through the possession and use of counterfeit sugar ration coupons" in large-scale sugar purchases in the State of Illinois have made recognizance bonds before U. S. Commissioner David J. Meyerhardt here.

Charles C. Anderson, alias Buster Anderson, of Collier Dr., Route 3; Harvey L. Scott, of 1407 McPherson Ave., S. E., operator of Scott's Service Station near the Farmers' Market, and Corbett L. Evans, of 126 Wellington St., S. W., were indicted by a Federal grand jury in Danville, Ill., and face action of the U. S. District Court in Danville.

The three appeared before Meyerhardt yesterday on recognizance for appearance before the Federal Court in Danville in October.

According to the Federal indictment naming the Atlantans as conspirators, counterfeit sugar rations were used in three purchases ranging from 20,000 to 60,000 pounds of sugar from the Federal Wholesale Corporation, a sugar wholesale concern in Eldorado, Ill. Alleged transactions covered the Jan. 1-June 1, 1946, period.

Anderson and Scott were placed under $7,500 bond each and Evans under $5,000 bond.

Additional charges that Georgia traffic in "black market" sugar is going far afield came yesterday from the District Office of Price Administration.

OPA Enforcement Attorney James M. Roberts disclosed that Georgia traffic in "hot" Cuban sugar, imported through Florida, is under "intensive investigation."

Declaring "moonshiners and others are going to any extreme to get sugar," Roberts cited the seizure last week of 7,200 pounds of Cuban sugar and an unlicensed truck in an isolated section of Spalding County by agents of the Alcohol Tax Unit.

Driver of the truck was named as Raymond A. Crawford, of Jacksonville, who has been bound over to a U. S. grand jury under $5,000 bond.

OPA reported the truck driver had papers to establish his own identity but had no bill of sale, invoice or manifest to account for the sugar and denied knowledge of whom the truck or sugar belonged to.

The sugar and vehicle yesterday remained unclaimed, Roberts said.

Seizure was made by Alcohol Tax Unit Agent T. U. Cone and State Revenue Agents A. D. Rhodes and B. W. Foster.

Roberts declared yesterday that courts will "have to begin giving prison sentences instead of probations" if the black market in sugar, automobiles and other commodities is to be smashed in Georgia.

He expressed the opinion that the black market has thrived on "prejudiced juries" and pointed out that not a single prison sentence has been given in Georgia for violations of price ceilings in the sale of new and used automobiles.

How to Hold FALSE TEETH More Firmly in Place

Do your false teeth annoy and embarrass by slipping, dropping or wabbling when you eat, laugh or talk? Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This alkaline (non-acid) powder holds false teeth more firmly and more comfortably. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH today at any drug store.—(adv.)

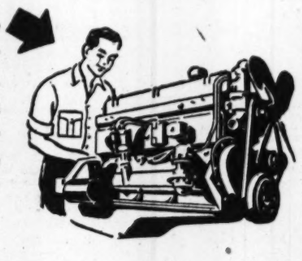
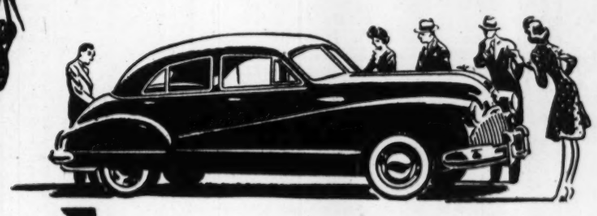
For One Thing—This! Fresh new styling that clearly says "1946." The sheer good looks of long low lines, full sweeping fenders, solid, uncluttered appearance in every line and contour.

For Another Thing—This! A big straight-eight Fireball engine, made silky-smooth with Accurite-finished cylinders and brilliantly able to hold its own on any highway.



For Another Thing—This! The matchlessly soft cradling of gentle coil springs on all four wheels—springs that float you like a breeze over cobbles and bumps.

For Another Thing—This! The word for it is "handling"—meaning the deft lightness of wheel and brake and gearshift that makes every trip truly a pleasure trip. You have to experience it to know it—but it's what makes a Buick salesman out of every new Buick owner.



In a Word—The Best Buick Yet! You can buy one at OPA ceiling price—with or without a car to trade in. And the great Buick factories are turning them out as fast as they can get materials. So put your name on our list and get one headed your way.

Civitans Approve RezoningRequest

Application of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Messiah for the rezoning of property located at Clairmont Avenue and Erie Street in Decatur in order that a church, parish house and rectory may be built has received support from the Decatur Civitan Club.

The Decatur club bases its indorsement on five points. They are:

1. Application had been presented to the zoning authorities of Decatur, and due to objections of the residents it was denied.
2. That Decatur prides itself on being a city of homes, schools and churches.
3. That all religious denominations should have equal rights and privileges if they can meet the zoning requirements of the city.
4. Other churches have been given permission to build their plants.
5. That the City Authority should encourage the building of churches if the architecture blends with the neighborhood.

Atlanta Vet Groups Join Tangle on Housing

Atlanta veteran groups are joining in the fray between the Home Builders' Association of Atlanta and the Government's Veterans' Emergency Housing Program.

Lester Persells, Chairman of the American Veterans Committee, Atlanta Chapter, yesterday flayed Atlanta builders for "doing a disservice to veterans by inciting them against provisions of the Government."

"Veterans in this Committee believe that the Veterans Emergency Housing Program is the best possible solution to our immediate shelter needs," Persells said.

"Congress passed a law setting up the program with the idea of alleviating shortages and housing us while we attend school. Home builders could help this good and necessary program — what they should do is 'back up' instead of 'buck'."

Another veteran group taking an opposite view, yesterday met in the office of Roy C. Tippin, Executive Vice President of the Builders Association, to indorse builders' protests against alleged "Government hoarding of scarce building materials."

William A. Sirmon, of 749 Peachtree St., N. E., Chairman of a recently organized Veterans Housing Committee, composed of independent veterans of both World Wars, reported the second veteran group "resolved to advise by letter and word of mouth all members of the American Legion in Georgia, and other veterans, of the existing housing situation."

Sirmon said his committee had compiled figures showing 4,000 homes are now under construction in metropolitan Atlanta by private builders and veterans, for veteran occupancy. The group claims all these homes could be completed within four or five months "if FPHA would surrender its superpriority to veterans and permit critical items to be distributed to builders in Atlanta."

The committee went on record as declaring "Veterans will not be satisfied with housing being forced on them by the Government."

Snyder Awards Charters To State News Boy Clubs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Snyder Wednesday awarded charters for News Boy Thrift Clubs to the first 81 daily newspapers to organize such associations among their carriers.

FUNERAL NOTICES

BALDWIN, Miss Helen—Died Wednesday at the residence, 3435 Ivy Road, N. E., in her 82d year. Survivors include two brothers, Mr. A. N. M. Baldwin, of Atlanta, and Mr. John R. Baldwin, of Evanston, Ill; one sister, Miss Susan B. Baldwin. Funeral will be announced by Awtry & Lowndes.

McCONNELL, Mr. James T. (Dad)—of Roosevelt Highway, died Wednesday evening at a private hospital. He is survived by his wife; daughters, Miss Kathryn McConnell, Mrs. Carl C. Boyd; son, Mr. Wyont McConnell; granddaughter, Judith Ann McConnell; niece, Mrs. C. A. Long. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Howard L. Carmichael & Sons.

DANIEL—The friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Daniel, Duncan, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Daniel, Augusta, Ga., and the grandchildren are invited to attend the funeral of Mr. J. Frank Daniel Thursday, 3:30 o'clock from the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes. Dr. J. G. Kirckhoff and Dr. Paul S. James officiating. The following will serve as pallbearers and assemble at the chapel: Mr. W. H. Giles, Mr. J. T. Buice, Mr. J. A. McCoy, Mr. R. L. Prather, Mr. J. W. Landers and Mr. M. L. Wheeler. Interment West View Cemetery.

CITY HALL CLOSES —FOR BARBECUE

Atlanta's City Hall will close at 1 p. m. today for the remainder of the afternoon so employes may attend the annual police barbecue and dance at Lakewood Park.

Council Monday passed a resolution ordering the building closed and Acting Mayor Cecil Hester approved the action. The dance orchestra for the celebration will be directed by Bob Jones, investigator attached to City Atty. Jack C. Savage's office.

Food Dispensers To Test OPA Order in Court

With announcement that hotel and restaurant associations throughout the country plan court actions to test OPA's right to roll back meat menu prices to June 30 levels, Atlanta restaurants are delaying action on the OPA order pending the outcome of a meeting of restaurant executives here today.

Mark Wooding, President of the Atlanta Association of Better Restaurants, said a meeting of the group has been called for 3:30 p. m. today at Wooding's Cafeteria.

The restaurant executive, immediately following announcement of the OPA rollback order Monday, had predicted "wholesale restaurant closings" if the order were enforced.

Restaurants in such key cities as New York and Chicago have already announced shutdowns in some instances, allegedly due to the OPA action.

Regional OPA officials late yesterday declined to comment on the situation, declaring it "not yet clarified enough for a statement from OPA."

BOYS' DEPARTMENT

ELIZABETH WOODWARD SAYS:

Impersonal Birthday Gift Is Friendly 'Thank You'.

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "Several months ago one of the boys around here paid a lot of attention to me . . . but I didn't like him too much . . . so I gave him the run-around. He took that seriously, too, I guess . . . 'cause he's now started going around with other girls. And, of course, now I've changed my mind. All the time I didn't like him, he thought I was playing hard to get. I want him to know that I like him now . . . but I'm afraid he won't when he finds out I wasn't kidding when I broke all our other dates."

If your boy friend stood for your little game, and let you get away with breaking dates right and left, he must have liked you a lot. Most boys won't waste their time on a girl who doesn't appreciate their attention and reciprocate their affection and interest. There's no point in laying your cards on the table and telling him exactly how you feel now. If he still bothers to ask you for dates, your change of heart ought to be evident in your interest in him and in the fun you have with him. Let your actions speak loud . . . and you won't have to talk it over.

A TOKEN PAYMENT

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "All Summer I've been dating a boy I like very much. His birthday is soon and I wondered if it would be all right for me to get him a small, impersonal gift, perhaps a book. We don't go steady . . . he knows I go with other boys . . . and I wouldn't want him to think I'm crazy about him or acting possessive."

If you've been dating this boy all Summer, he's undoubtedly done many nice things for you. Giving him an impersonal little birthday gift is a fine, friendly way for you to say "thank you."

OUT OF SIGHT

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "While on my vacation I met a fellow and grew to like him a lot. Just before I left for home, he told me he could not correspond with me because he is five years older than I am . . . so we ended things right then and there. Now I'm home and I can't get him off my mind. I have his address and I wonder if I should write to him and tell him how I feel."

You said good-by . . . so let it go at that. You can't get this boy off your mind, so you're tempted to track him down. The lad gave you a feeble enough excuse for not writing . . . but it all adds up to the fact that that's all there is to your friendship . . . there isn't going to be any more. So why put yourself in a spot where you're slapped again? Put his address in the back of your desk, and forget about it.

HAVE IT OUT

DEAR MISS WOODWARD: "I have an awful problem by the name of Mary. We used to be very friendly . . . but for months now she's been giving me the cold shoulder. I've tried my best to be friendly, but no luck. At the last few parties I've danced only with her to give her the idea that it's her I like . . . but I'm not at all sure she got the idea. What should I do?"

Put it straight to her . . . ask her right out what the score is. If she just doesn't like you . . . forget her. But keep being friendly . . . she may change her mind!

Dr. Brady — QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

WATERMELON

How many calories in a 30-pound watermelon? (F. D.)

Answer—Hardly enough to bother to pick out of your teeth—the edible portion of watermelon contains only about 140 calories per pound.

UNNATURAL

For 12 years have used twice daily nasal douche of salt and soda in warm water, applied with medicine dropper. Originally prescribed by nose and throat specialist for dry condition of nose and discomfort from stuffiness. There is never any nasal discharge, although specialist said if I neglected it nasal catarrh would eventually develop. (A. M. G.)

Answer—Time to break the silly habit. Instead see that artificially heated atmosphere of home, office, sleeping room is kept properly humidified — send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet on Humifidication.

VEGETABLES FOR BABY

Daughter, 11 months, healthy, 22½ pounds. I cook vegetables 2 to 30 minutes, feed them strained. Other mothers say it is better to used canned pureed vegetables. (Mrs. D. H.)

Answer—Your way is all right. Baby should weigh 25 pounds at age of a year. Be sure to give her plenty of ripe banana. She should have some fresh raw vegetable now—carrot, potato—just a taste at first, gradually a little more day by day. Be sure to give her good daily ration fresh or factory canned tomato juice.

SKIN OIL

Please give your opinion of the use of olive oil instead of cold cream (with luxury tax on it) for the skin and complexion. (Miss C. O.)

Answer—It is all right. The Skin Oil preparation and use of which is described in "Save Your Skin" (for booklet send 25 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address) is better.

NO THROWBACKS

Mother is German, father mixture of Belgium and Negro, daughter has German characteristics, light brown hair, green eyes. Daughter engaged to man of French parentage. He has black hair, brown eyes. Would children born to them possibly be black? (S. P.)

Answer—No. Children would be no more negroid in color or characteristics than the darker or more negroid parent. No such thing as a "throwback" ever happens in the human race.

WOMEN 38-52 YEARS OF AGE-DO YOU SUFFER THESE FUNNY EMBARRASSING FEELINGS?

due to this functional 'middle-age' cause?

How time flies—especially when a woman is getting along in her 'forties.' It seems only yesterday when she was the belle of her high school class. Only yesterday when she solemnly took her marriage vows. Only yesterday when she proudly held her first-born.

What a shock it often is for a woman in her 'forties' to wake up and suddenly realize she is in the class commonly referred to as 'middle-age'—the age when so many women suffer from certain distressing symptoms.

If you are in your 'forties' and this functional 'middle-age' period peculiar to women is causing you to suffer from funny, embarrassing symptoms such as hot flashes, nervous distress, irritability and weak, tired, highstrung feelings—then try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. This great medicine is famous for this purpose.

For over SEVENTY YEARS—Pinkham's Compound has been helping thousands upon thousands of women to go smiling thru such 'middle-age' distress. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such symptoms.

Pinkham's Compound helps nature. It's also a very excellent stomachic tonic. All drugstores.

Morris-Fowler Wedding Told

Capitol View Baptist Church formed the setting for the recent marriage of Miss Betty Irene Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Morris, to William Arthur Fowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Fowler, of Centerville, Ala. Rev. W. Lee Cutts officiated, and a program of music was presented by Mrs. Lawton B. Propes, organist, and R. P. Castleberry, soloist.

Mrs. A. C. Castleberry was her sister's matron of honor. She was attired in aqua crepe with black accessories, and her flowers were tuberoses.

V. J. Lisenby was best man, and ushers were A. C. Castleberry and Robert R. O'Kelley.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a powder blue crepe dress, a veiled hat of navy blue trimmed with white flowers, and navy accessories. Her flowers were orchids.

Miss Bridges Weds Hilton Beckham

The Hapeville Church of Christ formed the setting recently for the marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Bridges and Hilton Beckham, of Florence, Ala. The ceremony was performed by Rev. O. P. Baird, and the music was presented by Miss Betty Flanders, cousin of the bride.

W. D. Flynn and Edward Leveritt acted as ushers. Clyde Ellis Shaw, of Florence, Ala., was best man.

Miss Julia Parrish, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and she wore a gown of pale pink marquisette and carried a colonial bouquet of pastel flowers tied with blue satin ribbon.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, Dr. Daniel Russell Bridges, wore her sister's wedding gown of white marquisette over taffeta with a fitted bodice, a high neckline, long sleeves and a full skirt which extended to form a train. Her illusion veil was fastened to her hair to a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and tuberoses centered with orchids.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception. Assisting at the reception were Miss Nina Richmond, Mrs. James Duren, Mrs. James Bridges and Mrs. William Parrish. Miss Jean Futral kept the bride's book.

The couple left for a wedding trip. After returning from their trip the couple will reside in Florence, Ala.

Expanding air service is enabling the travel-minded to take off for weekends to places that formerly could be visited only on annual vacations. The seasoned traveler can be easily identified by her obvious unencumberment, and a selection of clothes that neither wrinkle nor wilt. Tilly Schanzer, an outstanding designer of casual clothes, created the dress pictured, so right for travel. Made of wool jersey in a rich shade of beige called "Canadian Club," the dress has classic simplicity and ample skirt fullness. A short fitted jacket of bright red buttons up closely. The sash from the dress may be used, as in this case, to make a turban. The coat is a lustrous beaver in three-quarter length, with the new push-up sleeves.

THE COOK'S NOTEBOOK

By SALLY SAVER

PEPPER UPPER

12 slices whole wheat bread
¼ cup margarine or butter
1 tablespoon parsley
Liver spread
6 slices crisp bacon

Trim edges from bread and spread with blend of margarine and parsley. Top with generous layer of liver spread and minced crisp bacon. Place second piece of bread over top and slice diagonally.

TUNA TRIFLES

Thin slices white bread
Tuna fish
Minced celery
Onion
Ripe olives
Mayonnaise

Trim edges from bread, spread with margarine or butter and press into muffin pans and brown. Fill cups with mixture of tuna fish, minced celery, onion, ripe olive and mayonnaise. Top with piece of ripe olive.

COLD MEAT SALAD PLATTER

Dressing:
1-4 cup salad oil
2-3 cup vinegar
1-8 teaspoon black pepper
3-4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons cold bouillon
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
Salad:
2 cups diced cooked potatoes
2 cups diced cooked carrots
1 1-2 cups diced cooked beets
1 1-2 cups cooked green peas
3 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely chopped
Assorted cold cuts
Lettuce cups
Parsley

Mix together oil, vinegar, pepper, salt, mustard, bouillon and parsley. Let stand 30 minutes to blend flavors. Combine potatoes, carrots, beets, peas and eggs. Add dressing and mix very lightly. Arrange cold cuts around outer rim of large platter. Place lettuce cups in center and fill with salad mixture. Garnish with parsley. Makes 12 servings.

STUFFED HAMBURGER ROLL

2 cups hamburger (1 pound) (reserve 2 tablespoons for dressing)
1 egg, unbeaten
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
1-8 teaspoon marjoram or sage

Combine hamburger, egg, salt, pepper and marjoram. Then make stuffing:

Bread stuffing:
1 tablespoon shortening or margarine
2 tablespoons hamburger
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1-3 cup water
1-2 teaspoon celery salt
Dash of marjoram or sage
3 cups soft 1-2-inch bread cubes

Melt shortening in a skillet. Fry 2 tablespoons hamburger and onion until tender. Add water and let simmer five minutes. Add celery salt and marjoram. Combine with bread cubes. Then make roll as follows: Spread hamburger mixture on waxed paper and shape into a rectangular sheet. Top the layer of hamburger with a layer of bread stuffing, then roll as a jelly roll by lifting waxed paper and gently rolling meat away from it. Bake in a shallow pan in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for forty minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Parisian Collections Emphasize Scarves, Lace, Velvet, Feminine Accessories

Editor's Note: Dora "Loues Miller, widely known in New York fashion circles and for years a resident of Paris, agreed on the basis of personal friendship to send us a first-hand report on Paris fashions.

—WINIFRED WARE.

PARIS, Sept. 18—Paris silhouettes this year vary according to designers, but all Paris collections are agreed on the importance of accessories for suits and dresses, with special emphasis on neckwear novelties, scarf tricks and effects.

One of the most exciting collections, presented by Madeleine Vramant featured the unusual use of heavy jersey for slim waisted dresses. Also unusual was her new double sleeve in coats and suits, marked by a bell sleeve rolled back to show a deep inner cuff. Interesting collar and cuff effects and her fascinating use of real lace for formal wear all added to the picture of a truly Parisienne collection. Almost every day outfit whether suit, dress or coat was accompanied by its own scarf, always in contrast but chosen with a color sense that made it a definite part of the allure of the ensemble.

Lelong's wrap-around coats in all lengths from a suit with short jacket that comes barely to the hip and a short cutaway crossing to the finger tips, also came in three-quarter and full lengths. These were always shown with deep rounded shouiders and often with a soft turned-back collar, but always with scarfs of all types to give effects varying from high throats to softly draped fronts. Exciting features in his collection were a closely fitted black velvet dress with a square scarf used as a sarong over it; a brown velvet full-skirted dinner dress with low throat covered by a white draped Martha Washington fichu, and a full-length pleated dress with a banded bottom and scarfs used as a belt and at the neck.

Fath, introducing his new flared and portfolio skirts, made much of accessories with trimmings, scarfs, lace fill-ins, white gilets, vests and velvet collars. Of particular interest here were the scarfs sewed to make one sleeve and used as a shoulder drape.

An exceptionally good collection was presented by Mad Carpentier, featuring the famous manipulation of fabric and studied cutting effects. Particularly interesting here was a black broadcloth suit-coat and a formal evening gown with pointed purple tunic of satin over a crimson skirt with matching scarf draped in deep folds to fill almost the waistlength decollete.

Paquin's excellent collection, marked by circular cut of coats and sleeves, also featured many scarf and collar effects, varying from a matching velvet collar and wide girdle over a tight dress; a high neck white satin collar with rolled deep points; ruffled lace edging on the deep shallow square neck of a black evening dress and a scarlet scarf worn with a beige street dress and matching a scarf draped on the brim of a green breton.

A stocking cap idea, cut wide and mounted on a rolled band, wrapping the face like a shawl and ending in fringed square ends, done in jersey and also faced with fur and matching fur-topped gloves was an interesting part of Piquet's presentation. Interesting effects were achieved here as with a black velvet formal with its low black lace and lined satin peplum and matching headress; and draped front decollete fill-ins of net.

Outstanding in the Heim, Jeune Fille collection for certain licensed American firms were a soft blue crepe evening gown with a double bertha edged in sawtooth, the edging repeated in three bands on the skirt, and a black velvet dress with venise collar and cuffs as well as the use of many deep yokes and drop-shoulder effects.

Schiaparelli favored checked tweeds with interesting scarf arrangements and lower waistline and higher neck effects accomplished with scarfs and collars. Continually repeated throughout the collection were scarfs tied in exaggerated knots—like men's cravats. Here, a black lace dinner dress with V neck emphasized by a white lace collar and matching cuffs, and an inset gilet heavily embroidered with silver to fill in a short black jacket were particularly outstanding.

White dotted silk gilet cuffs with a hunter green jersey suit were an exciting feature in Molyneux's as always-simple wearable collection. Other accessory features were the outjutting ruffles on the center bodice and on the three-quarter sleeves of a brown moire evening dress as well as the high white stock wrapped and bowed on a black evening dress.

Collars were favored by most of the designers, including Worth, who covered a red flannel vest with a black velvet collar, extending below the waist, while Nina Ricci edged a sailor collar with deep brown chenille that topped a cocoa dress and used sequin embroidered revers on the sweetheart neckline of an afternoon dress. Jean Lefaurie favored cocoa, too, and used it in collar and matching cuffs on a black wrap coat. In these three collections, as well as all the others, bertha and drop-shoulder effects were frequently seen.

Pierre Balmain's sweaters were topped with many simple white collars and cuffs which, in color contrast, were shown on tailored dresses. One suit used a collar and turn-back cuffs to match the blouse, the revers rolling back to show the blouse. Lace ruffles and velvet aprons were also effective and interesting.

One of the exceptionally effective collections was presented by Balenciaga, who made a point of interesting details. A number of soft pillboxes, most often with scarf drapings, either across back or at both sides, were shown. Much emphasis was also placed on matching collar and cuff themes here.

SALLY FORTH Says:

'Old Maids' Fete Member With Dinner, Champagne

The Old Maids' Club is not all the name implies, because since its organization by a group of high school belles in 1926 the membership has changed many times, and today the majority of the members are young matrons. When a member marries, the unmarried members entertain at a champagne party in her honor, and as has been the custom, the honor guest is presented a sewing kit.

Jule McClatchey, one of the "Old Maids," will become Mrs. Russell Brooke on Oct. 10, and so this evening she will be honored at a supper party, plus the champagne, at the Piedmont Driving Club. The affair will be the first given for a club member since 1942, when the former Anne Scott Harmon was honored prior to her marriage to Maj. John Mauldin. The club members departed a bit from custom that year, and did not give Anne Scott a sewing kit. Instead, because of the war and because John was in the service, they gave her a book, entitled "What Every Officer's Wife Should Know."

Members of the Old Maids' Club include such popular Atlantans as Marjorie Carmichael, Alice Gray Harrison, Clara McConnell, Lundye Sharpe, Frances Woolford, Jule McClatchey, Bright Bickerstaff (Mrs. Robert) West, Henrietta Gunn (Mrs. Wellborn) Persons, Jane McMillan (Mrs. Mack) Tharpe, Martha Skeen (Mrs. Robert) Gould, who now resides in Baltimore, Md.; Aileen Timmons (Mrs. Sam) Nelson, Anne Scott Harmon (Mrs. John) Mauldin, Sue Colquitt Hardman (Mrs. Joseph) Ivy, Mary Hurt (Mrs. Harold) Williams, Sara Simms (Mrs. Lawrence) Edge, Jennie Champion (Mrs. Gene) Nardin, Edith Harrison (Mrs. James) Henderson, Dorothea Blackshear (Mrs. Frank) Brady, Elizabeth Blackshear (Mrs. William) Flinn, and Emma Lake (Mrs. O. J.) Parker.

VIRGINIA'S DILEMMA

A group of pretty schoolgirls, including Virginia Eastman, Mary Lane Bryan and Tinsley Orr, who are 10-year-olds and who like nothing better than to make doll clothes, decided to take sewing lessons from real experts. They began their lessons about two weeks ago and are making for themselves cute little cotton dirndl skirts and matching blouses.

The other evening Virginia told her mother, Virginia (Mrs. Edmund) Eastman, that she had no new school clothes at all, and she didn't know what she'd do when classes began.

"Well," said Virginia, Sr., "I thought you were taking sewing lessons so that you could make your own clothes."

Whereupon little Virginia's countenance took on an air of dejection, for she had taken her mother seriously. She replied: "I won't know how to make my clothes for six more lessons and what will I do in the meantime?"

PASSING PARADE

Glimpsed at the aperitif party given at the Driving Club by Mrs. Clifford Ragsdale and her daughter, Raiford, for bride-elect Dorothy Grove. . . . The lovely honor guest wearing turquoise crepe, with a becoming draped turban fashioned of similar material. . . . Mrs. Ragsdale looking stunning in black and proudly revealing that the paradise feather which adorned her small black hat formerly trimmed one of her favorite hats in her trousseau more than 20 years ago. . . . Raiford offsetting her blond beauty with a smart black velvet frock, and a matching velvet hat trimmed with ermine tails, and carrying a small ermine muff caught with a cluster of gardenias sent her by the honor guest. . . . Bride-elect Jacqueline Thiesen looking unusually lovely in black crepe fashioned with inserts of pale pink chiffon over the shoulders, her off-the-face black hat trimmed in pale pink feathers. . . . Frances Grove wearing a svelte black satin gown with an intricately draped skirt and a black feather-trimmed hat. . . . Ely Callaway, Jr., laughing with friends over his guitar lessons. . . . Mrs. Callaway receiving compliments on her attractively decorated apartment. . . . Betty (Haverty) and Alex Smith, Jr., being greeted on their return from their honeymoon spent at The Homestead, Hot Springs, Va. . . . Helen McDuffie looking lovely in red and requesting Graham Jackson to play "Symphony" on his brand-new accordion. . . . Guests commenting on the newly decorated dining room and the fact that the Ragsdale party was the first held in it. . . . Helen Smith (Mrs. Edward, Jr.) Gay looking slim and attractive in black satin worn with a black feather hat. . . . Anne Equen wearing a red suit, her blond tresses bound in a black velvet ribbon.

Brownie Whitsel Will Be Honored

Members of the very young set will assemble at the Rollerdrome next Monday afternoon for the skating party at which Mrs. Travis Whitsel will entertain.

Honor guest will be her daughter, Brownie, who will celebrate her ninth birthday, and the guests will include 100 members of the school set. Miss Whitsel is a member of the fourth grade at the E. Rivers School. Mrs. H. Benson Ford will assist in entertaining.

The Dahlia Show, which will be presented at the City Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 24 and 25, will be open to the public from 2 p. m. until 9 p. m. on Sept. 24, and from 11 a. m. to 9 p. m. on Sept. 25.

Tickets may be purchased from Mrs. H. L. Spring, ticket chairman, who can be reached at CH. 1184, or from Hastings, Iris Lee at Davison's, and the Garden Center at Rich's.

Miss Waer Weds Herbert Lee Reed

PASSAIC, N. J.—St. John's Episcopal Church here formed the setting last evening for the marriage of Miss Loretta Mae Waer, daughter of Mrs. Edna A. Waer, to Herbert Lee Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Reed, of Atlanta.

Rev. Donald Mac Adie officiated and music was presented by Allan Scott Gordon, organist, and G. Robert Lindblom, soloist.

Ushers were Herbert Snoop and Jack Klapmust, of Clifton, N. J.

Mrs. John Baird was matron of honor for her sister. She wore pink starched chiffon, and her flowers were a cascade bouquet of pink roses, gladioli florets and delphinium. She wore a matching tiara in her hair.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. William A. Palmer, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Miss Ruth Ellen Waer, the bride's sister. They were gowned alike in aqua starched chiffon, and their flowers were cascade arrangements similar to that carried by the matron of honor.

John William Baird gave his sister in marriage, and the groom's father was the best man. The bride was becomingly gowned in white satin featuring a bodice trimmed in lace and a full skirt which formed a train. Her fingertip veil of English net was caught to a coronet of orange blossoms. Her flowers were in a cascade bouquet of orchids surrounded by white roses, white gladioli florets and stephanotis.

A reception given by Mrs. Waer at the Swiss Chalet in Rochelle, N. J., followed the ceremony. The bridal couple left for a wedding trip through the Blue Ridge and the Smoky Mountains, and after Oct. 1 they will reside at 957 Blue Ridge Ave., N. E., Atlanta. The bride traveled in a pearl gray suit worn with black and white accessories, a black fur jacket, and orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lee Reed and Miss Lottie Reed, of Atlanta, were among out-of-town guests attending the ceremony.

Sorority Rush Party

Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi business girls international sorority will entertain at a theater party as one of its rushing parties. The sorority will go to see "Holiday in Mexico" this evening. Miss Helen Crowe, Vice President, is in charge of rushing activities. The pledges are: Misses Grace Kelly, Elizabeth Maynard, Bobbe Hunter, Mae Martin, Ruth Karlson, Sara Hubbard, Flora Cromer, Dorothy White, Hazel Robinson, Marjorie Gray, Vera Jones and Virginia Ray.

New York Artists Arrive To Judge Art Exhibition

Atlantans are looking forward to meeting Mr. and Mrs. Peyton Boswell and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Philipp, all of New York, who arrive here Friday. Mr. Boswell is an art critic and Editor of the Art Digest, while Mr. Philipp is a nationally famous artist.

The quartet will come to Atlanta expressly for the Southeastern Annual Exhibition of oils and water colors, with Mr. Boswell and Mr. Philipp being among the judges. The exhibition is sponsored by the Atlanta Junior League and Davison's, and will be held Oct. 15 through Nov. 15, at the High Museum of Art.

Atlantans who will entertain for the visitors include Mr. and Mrs. Preston Stevens, who will give a ccoktail party at their home on West Pace's Ferry Road on Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hill will compliment the New Yorkers at a buffet supper to be held at their home on Argonne Drive Friday evening.

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Nunnally will honor Mr. and Mrs. Boswell and Mr. and Mrs. Philipp at a buffet dinner at their home on Tuxedo Road.

Prominent Guests Attend Wedding

A number of prominent visitors will arrive this week to attend the marriage of Miss Dorothy Grove and Claiborne Glover, Jr., which will be an important event of Saturday, taking place at noon at the Cathedral of Christ the King. The ceremony will be followed by a reception to be given by the bride-elect's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lon Grove, at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Claud Haverty, of Memphis, Tenn., the bride-elect's cousin, who will serve as a groomsman, has already arrived in the city, and he will be joined on Saturday by his father, Robert Haverty, of Memphis, who is listed among the ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grove and Frank Grove, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., and Mrs. Frank Anderson, of Union Springs, Ala., will arrive tomorrow and will be guests at the Georgian Terrace Hotel. John Morgan Glover, of Washington, D. C., will arrive today to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Claiborne Glover, Sr., on Habersham Road.

Tea Is Planned For Mrs. Shepard

Mrs. Duncan Shepard, a charming newcomer to Atlanta social ranks, will be central figure at the tea at which Mrs. C. Robert Mitchell will be hostess next Monday. The affair will be held at Mrs. Mitchell's Habersham Road residence, and will assemble a number of the feminine contingent of society from 4 to 6 o'clock to meet Mrs. Shepard.

The honor guest was before her recent marriage Miss Anna Dempwolf, of York, Pa. She and Dr. Shepard are residing at 864 Juniper Street.

E. L. Connally PTA

The E. L. Connally PTA holds a reception for new mothers and new faculty members after the business session this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the auditorium of Cascade Baptist Church on West Haven Drive. Mrs. J. H. Aldredge is President.

China Avows Desire for Mild Peace

NANKING, Sept. 18—(AP)—China believes in "very effective safeguards" to prevent a "resurgency of militarism," Foreign Minister Wang Shih-Chieh told foreign correspondents Wednesday.

Wang reiterated China's stand at the Paris Peace Conference, which he attended, by disavowing any intention of imposing a harsh settlement on Japan and Germany.

He said economic and political terms imposed on the vanquished should "not be such as to give a good chance for reactionary elements in enemy countries to revive and deprive democratic forces of an opportunity to grow."

Illegal Operation Fines Are Paid by Man, Wife

Convicted on three counts of abortion two weeks ago, H. S. Baxter and his wife, Mildred, of 669 Boulevard, N. E., yesterday were sentenced each to serve 12 months on the public works and six months in jail, to be probated upon payments of $1,000 fines, by Judge Virlyn Moore, of Fulton Superior Court. They paid the fines.

A 15-year-old Negro, Richard Houston Periman, in a trial before Judge Walter C. Hendrix, of Fulton Superior Court, was found guilty of assault with intent to murder and attempted larceny of an automobile. The jury sentenced him to 10 years in prison on the first charge. In the second case, he received a concurrent sentence of 12 months.

Witnesses testified Periman, arrested in the act of stealing an automobile at the corner of Broad and Mitchell Sts. last May 29, seized the revolver of his captor, Patrolman N. R. Clotfelter, and shot him. Going to the aid of Clotfelter, Patrolman T. E. Brown testified he shot Periman in the chest twice before subduing him. Neither Clotfelter's nor Periman's wounds proved serious.

Ruth Warrick, Governors To Attend Premiere

By PAUL JONES

Ruth Warrick, glamorous brunette picture star, the governors of all Southeastern states and newspapermen from all over the nation will join Walt Disney to attend the premiere of Disney's "Song of the South," film adaptation of Joel Chandler Harris' famous "Uncle Remus Stories."

RUTH WARRICK

Plans to bring Miss Warrick here in addition to the people who furnish the voices of the many Disney characters, including Pluto, Donald Duck and Snow White, were announced yesterday by Terry Turner, Exploitation Chief of RKO Pictures.

At the same time Turner revealed the premiere festivities would include a big parade down Peachtree Street, followed by luncheon parties and dinner parties at the Capital City Club and the Piedmont Driving Club.

"All of the fanfare imaginable is being readied for this great opening," Turner said. "The two children, Luana Patten and Bobby Driscol, who play such an important part in the picture, will accompany Disney and his wife to Atlanta and a round of children's festivities, including ice cream parties, have been arranged for them."

The home of Joel Chandler Harris, now the Wren's Nest in West End, will be one of the focal points of interest when Disney dedicates an old Negro cabin in the rear of the home several days before the premiere. This authentic slave house is being duplicated.

A miniature Walt Disney studio complete with a 16-mm. projector, artists and lesturers will be set up in Atlanta about a week before the opening to acquaint Atlantans with the method used in producing animated movies.

Gov. Arnall will be invited to play host to the Governors of the Southern States who will be invited by RKO to attend the showing. In addition a number of outstanding newspapermen from New York, Philadelphia, Boston and all of the metropolitan cities of the South are being invited.

Ex-Servicemen Eligible For Jobs in Hospitals

Discharged servicemen with experience in the Army or Navy's medical rehabilitation program are eligible for some 150 vacancies now existing in 16 Veterans' Administration hospitals in the Southeast, the VA has announced.

The VA needs qualified physical therapists, registered occupational therapists, corrective physical rehabilitation supervisors, educational re-training instructors, and shop re-training personnel. Pay scale for virtually all openings ranges from $2,600 to $4,149.

JANE ANDERSON
Wanted for Treason.

Jane Anderson Is Target of Treason Hunt

Jane Anderson, formerly of Atlanta, said to be missing, was one of the six American radio figures mentioned in Washington yesterday in connection with the Justice Department's roundup of persons suspected of wartime broadcasts for the Nazis.

Miss Anderson is under indictment for treason along with Robert Best, a native of Sumter, S. C., and Douglas Chandler, of Chicago, who broadcast for the Nazis under the name of "Paul Revere."

Best and Chandler are in custody and will be returned to this country shortly from the Army Prison Camp at Obrusel, Germany, to face trial for treason.

GI Insurance Adds Disabled Clause

Veterans holding National Service Life Insurance policies may now apply for additional total disability protection at minimum premium rates, Craigie Krayenvuhl, Director of Insurance Service, Southeastern Branch, Veterans' Administration, has announced.

Krayenvuhl said disability provisions in the recently revised NSLI program are now comparable to insurance obtainable in commercial policies.

Disability protection pays the insured veteran an income of $5 per month for each $1,000 insurance for total disability lasting six months or longer, if the insured person is under 60 years of age. Rates for additional protection are approximately $2.50 per month for a $10,000 policy for veterans under 30.

Disability payments in such a case would provide an income of $50 per month.

The total disability clause is an addition to waiver of premiums for total disability, a benefit available to any veteran holding a NSLI policy, whether or not he has the additional total disability policy.

U. S. May Quit Supplying War Shipments to China

NANKING, China, Sept. 18—(UP)—The United States is considering freezing millions of dollars' worth of war surplus shipments to China in an effort to halt civil war, a reliable source said Wednesday.

Such action, this source said, would revive Communist eagerness to negotiate for peace.

Truce discussions broke up abruptly Tuesday, when Gen. Chou En-Lai, chief Communist negotiator, left for Shanghai.

Communists have charged the United States with participating in China's civil war on the Government's side. Halting surplus shipments might re-establish United States Gen. Marshall as a "neutral mediator" in Communist eyes, the source said.

CPA Okays $145,679 in Construction

Forthcoming Georgia commercial construction totaling $145,679 has just been approved by the District Office of the Civilian Production Administration in Atlanta.

CPA approvals include six Atlanta projects, one a $23,395 addition to Atlanta Steel Company's manufacturing plant at 16th Street and Mecaslin Avenue, N. W.; a $20,000 lumber warehouse at Columbus, and a $24,500 freezer locker plant at Jesup.

D. Leon Williams, District CPA Director, listed Atlanta projects as follows:

Atlanta Steel Company addition; $5,000 office and warehouse, Cowan Supply Company, 134 Walker St., S. W.; $4,000 warehouse, W. H. Sharpe, 457 Moreland Ave., N. E.; $3,000 office and warehouse, LeCraw Company, at 1268 Piedmont Ave.; $2,574 alterations to warehouse, Otis Elevator Company, 39 Harris St., N. E.; $1,200 alterations to clinic, A. G. Rhodes Home for Incurables, 350 Boulevard, S. E.;

Austell, $4,800 electric repair and storage building, L. L. Ragsdale; Carrollton, $18,000 supermarket, Mrs. E. V. Folds, 31 Dixie St.; Macon, $2,300 drug store, Glass Pharmacy, 458 Mulberry St.; Athens, $6,000 repairs to shoe store, T. E. Tuttle, 145 E. Clayton Street.

Savannah, $15,260 refrigerator trailer repair shop, Steel Products Company, Inc., Lathrop Avenue, and $7,000 alterations to store building, Eleanor Shops, 24 W. Broughton St.

Columbus, $20,000 warehouse and office, Columbus Lumber Supply Company, 20th Street and 12th Avenue, and $1,450 piano repair shop, J. C. Durden, 824 Second Avenue.

Jesup, $24,500 freezer locker plant, Wayne Freezer Locker Company, Cherry Street; Dublin, $4,000 drive-in restaurant, Robert Henry Hightower, Jr., 301 Academy Ave.; Hiawassee, $3,300 post office building, U. S. Post Office.

Gen. Gambara Arrested

ROME, Sept. 18—(AP) — Ansa News Agency reported from Naples Wednesday that Gen. Gastone Gambara had been taken to Brescia to be tried for war crimes. Gambara led the Italian expeditionary force which fought for the Nationalists in Spain's civil war, was Ambassador to the Franco Government after the civil war, and was Mussolini's Chief of Staff in Northern Italy after the Italian armistice.

All Together, Slam the Germs; It's Health Week in Atlanta

By CLARK HOWELL, JR.

You never really value it, until you haven't got it. Then it's often too late to do anything about it. That's why civic clubs, the federation of women's clubs, the radio, newspapers, schools, merchants and many organizations have joined this week to focus the attention of the people of this area on the importance of good health.

Health Week for Atlanta, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, began Sept. 15 and will extend through Sept. 21. It is a major effort on the part of the community to make its citizens conscious of the importance of good health. It is aimed particularly toward working, mobilizing and planning for a better health program, not just for this week, but for every week.

Howard Strong, Secretary of the Health Advisory Council of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, arrived in Atlanta yesterday to speak to groups during the remainder of the week on the preventive and curative methods now used in controlling disease.

"The United States Chamber of Commerce is no longer interested exclusively in business," he said. "It has taken on a broader view. The Chamber now is concerned with the entire growth of a community and good health is an important part of that growth.

MUST HAVE BACKING

"A local health program never can be fully effective until it has the backing of the citizens, businesses and business leaders, until it has stimulated general community interest," he said.

"Our job now it to wipe out those diseases which we know how to fight, and to promote research and early treatment of those diseases of which we know little or nothing," he said.

Strong will be in Atlanta until Friday night during which time he will speak at the Junior Chamber of Commerce luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today at the Ansley Hotel, and at the health conferences to be held at the assembly hall of the Chamber of Commerce building this afternoon and tomorrow.

In addition to the co-operation of the many Atlanta clubs and businesses in promoting Health Week in Atlanta, the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross and the city schools are working in the effort.

SCHOOLS CO-OPERATE

"Every week is Health Week in the city schools," said Miss Ira Jarrell, Superintendent of city schools," but we are co-operating to make Atlanta health conscious. We have sent bulletins to all the schools urging all the children to get physical and dental examinations and in addition we are urging all the PTA's to co-operate with the drive."

Oby T. Brewer, Chairman of the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross, has called attention to the three educational services offered by that organization, nutrition service, home nursing service and first aid—water safety and accident prevention service.

The nutrition service, through its classes and conferences, points out the causes of malnutrition and its effects on health. The home nursing service gives women an opportunity to learn how to help their doctors by recognizing emergencies requiring medical skill as well as what to do in case of sickness in the family.

In addition to these efforts to stimulate interest in better health the Chamber of Commerce has erected exhibits of portable X-ray equipment and mobile dental units in the lobby of the Belle Isle Building, which has attracted wide interest.

Runoff Day Set For East Point Mayor Election

Run-off in the East Point Mayoralty election will be held Oct. 8, E. L. Cole, City Clerk, has announced.

Because neither N. Phil Edmondson, who polled 751 votes, nor J. Henry Blair, who polled 657, had a majority over L. J. McWilliams, who ran third, with 628, and was eliminated, the race will be run again between Edmondson and Blair.

In the second ward councilmanic elections, J. Ben Barber was named by Tuesday night's tabulations, but another candidate, E. J. Bass, because some ballots were indistinctly marked, asked for a recount, which was held yesterday. In the recount, Barber was named winner with 253 votes, while Bass and Euchee Skinner tied with 248.

Vets Get 2d Chance To Buy Tool Chests

Certified World War II veterans will have a second chance today to buy surplus tool chests offered at the Conley Army Depot by the War Assets Administration.

WAA Regional Director H. L. Kennon announced late yesterday the "store sale," originally a one-day sale, will be extended through today.

Between 350 and 400 veterans attended yesterday's sale, buying 334 of the 558 tool chests on sale. Chests, both new and used, are described as "completely equipped" with 29 separate items and range in price from $27.50 to $55. They are on the "set aside" list for exclusive sale to veterans.

Suspect, Gun Held by Police In Cab Robbery

A second man has been arrested in the robbery of an Atlanta taxi driver, which sent one person to Grady Hospital suffering bullet wounds.

DeKalb Detective Johnny Jones announced yesterday that Easley, S. C., police have arrested Grady Minard, 18, of Toccoa, Ga., in connection with the attempted robbery of Cab Driver S. G. Stephens in DeKalb County last Sunday

John Gordon Rainey, 27, also of Toccoa, was shot by Stephens. Jones said Rainey would be charged with robbery. The detective said Rainey and Minard were seen together in Atlanta before boarding the cab. Rainey has denied any complicity in the robbery attempt, stating that the other passenger, "a stranger," acted alone.

Jones reported that officers found a .38-calibre pistol near the scene of the hold-up attempt, on Candler Rd. near the Buford Highway. Presumably belonging to the robber or robbers, the pistol contained four cartridges, two of which had been fired. There were two bullet holes in the taxicab.

Schmidt, Mink Awarded Prizes At Beauty Show

Louis Schmidt, of Detroit, Mich., was awarded first prize in the hair-dressing contest at the Southeastern Beauty Trade Show in the Municipal Auditorium last night.

George V. Mink, of Atlanta, was awarded a trophy for the most outstanding "Coiffure for the Future." He was chosen out of 62 entries.

Schmidt won with 650 points and was awarded the "Challenge Shield," which, because he has won it twice before, is now his permanent possession.

The decisions in the contest climaxed four days of elimination by the judges. Nineteen of 73 exhibitors in the show participated in the contest.

Second, third and fourth prizes went, respectively, to Mrs. Evelyn Quick, of Huntsville, Ala., who had 641 points; Miss Hilda McClendon, of Tallassee, Ala., 631 points, and Harllo Haleczky, of Detroit, Mich., 613 points.

NEWS ABOUT GEORGIA

Compiled from Constitution State News Reports
By BOB RUTHERFORD

HEADLINE NEWS OF GEORGIA: Van A. Bittner, Director of the CIO, will be principal speaker when 300 delegates meet at Macon tomorrow for the Seventh Annual Convention of the State Industrial Union Council. . . . Valdosta meat market operators, their shelves practically bare, will meet today to take "definite action in regards to the meat shortage." . . . The Georgia Elks Association will hold its Fall parley at Thomasville Sunday. . . . Waycross will hold a special election Nov. 15 to vote on school tax increase. . . . Moultrie's giant cucumber crop will begin moving tomorrow.

SCARED INTO TALKING: Fred McLeod, who handles special delivery for the Valdosta Post Office, was in a big hurry to finish up his work yesterday. He dashed up to the porch of a Negro home with his last special delivery package of the day, stuck the pad and pencil at a Negro man sitting on the porch and nearly startled the man out of his chair. "I can't write," he said, and called a woman to the door. She was more excited than the man. "Mister," she told McLeod, "that's the first time this man has talked in months. You've suprised him into getting back his voice."

NEWS BRIEFS OF GEORGIA: Heads of the Fitzgerald Cotton Mills have announced a blanket eight-cent-an-hour raise, to become effective Sept. 30. . . . Ben Hill County's voters will go to the polls tomorrow to vote in their first liquor election since 1938. . . . Representatives of naval stores producers will meet in Valdosta Sept. 25 with Government representatives to draft the 1947 naval stores conservation program. . . . A new million-dollar plywood plant will open at Brunswick Oct. 14. . . . Georgia Military College at Milledgeville has set a new enrollment record, as 544 cadets were reported enrolled at the school.

CALLIOPES AND BLUE RIBBONS: Fall is county fair time in Georgia, and the Northeast Georgia Fair, to be held at Gainesville Oct. 28-Nov. 2, is expected to surpass any other similar event ever staged in that section of the State, according to Herbert H. Adderholdt, Secretary-Treasurer of the event. Exhibits will come from Habersham, White, Union, Rabun, Towns, Banks, Lumpkin, Dawson, Forsyth, Gwinnett, Barrow, Cherokee, Jackson, Stephens, Gilmer, Pickens and Hall Counties. The premium book now is being prepared and soon will be ready for distribution. Additions have been made to the livestock buildings, and another exhibit tent will be added.

WELL-DIGGER IS CONFIDENT: "Our water situation now is well in hand," according to the Mayor of Adrian, the city whose only source of water supply went dry more than three weeks ago. Citizens have been hauling water from the Swainsboro Highway since the town's only artesian well dried up. The well-digger has progressed 240 feet towards digging a new well. "The people are optimistic, the well-digger is confident, and if we receive a little layoff from the rain, we'll have water very shortly," the Mayor stated.

GEORGIANS IN THE NEWS: "The United Nations can bring about peace if the people want peace," Hamilton Holt, of Macon, said in a talk at Chattanooga yesterday. . . . Dr. J. Curtis Dixon has resigned as Vice President of Mercer University to become Vice President of the Southern Educational Foundation. G. B. McConnell, of Barnesville, will succeed him. . . . R. L. King, of Valdosta, has been named to serve as a member of the National Chamber of Commerce's Committee on Agriculture. . . . Lt. Col. Harry O. Smith, owner and publisher of the Winder News, has returned to active management of the paper.
